

MARILYN E. BEDNARSKI, SBN 105322
E-Mail: mbednarski@mblllegal.com
McLane, Bednarski & Litt, LLP
975 East Green Street
Pasadena, California 91106
Telephone: (626) 844-7660
Facsimile: (626) 844-7670

ABBE DAVID LOWELL, pro hac vice
DAVID A. KOLANSKY, pro hac vice
E-Mail: alowellpublicoutreach@lowellandassociates.com
Lowell & Associates, PLLC
1250 H Street, NW, Suite 250
Washington, DC 20005
Telephone: (202) 964-6110
Facsimile: (202) 964-6116

Attorneys for Defendant
DAVID HUERTA

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
WESTERN DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

DAVID HUERTA,

Defendant.

CASE NO.: 2:25-CR-00841-SB

DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO DISMISS FOR CONSTITUTIONAL VIOLATIONS

Date: February 3, 2026 (PTC)
(Hearing Length Estimate: 1 hour)
Time: 8:00 a.m.
Ctrm: 6C (1st Street U.S. Courthouse)

1 NOTICE OF MOTION

2 Defendant David Huerta, by and through undersigned counsel, brings this 3 Motion to Dismiss for Constitutional Violations, pursuant to Federal Rule of 4 Criminal Procedure 12(b)(3)(A), and respectfully requests this Court for an order
5 dismissing the Information against him, as he was charged under a sentence of Title
6 18 U.S.C. § 1501 that is overbroad on its face, in violation of the First Amendment,
7 unconstitutionally vague, in violation of the First and Fifth Amendments, and 8 should be dismissed under this court's supervisory powers, for violations of Mr.
9 Huerta's First and Fourth Amendment rights during his arrest.

10 On December 17, 2025, counsel for Mr. Huerta and the government conferred 11 by telephone regarding the government's position on our request that they specify
12 what conduct on June 6, 2025, constituted his "knowingly and willfully, 13 obstruct[ing], resist[ing], and oppos[ing] an officer of the United States" in serving
14 and executing a search warrant alleged in the Information, in violation of Section
15 1501.<sup>1</sup> ECF 29. Government counsel indicated on the phone and in follow-up
16 correspondence dated December 19, 2025 that the government's theory of criminal 17 liability is based on what they described as "Mr. Huerta's course of conduct" on 18 June 6, from his arrival outside the search warrant location to begin protesting, at 19 approximately 11:49 a.m. to approximately 12:15 p.m., when Mr. Huerta was 20 thrown to the ground and detained by federal agents.

21 On January 5, 2026, defense counsel conferred by video with and advised the 22 government of its intention to file this motion to dismiss the Information for 23

24
25
26 <sup>1</sup> Counsel for Mr. Huerta first requested that the government identify the specific 27 conduct that constituted "obstruct, resist, and oppose an officer" alleged in the 28 Information in a letter to government counsel, dated November 5, 2025. Defense counsel's letter went unanswered until December 19, 2025.

1 constitutional violations, and government counsel indicated that it would oppose the 2 motion.

3
4 Dated: January 6, 2026

Respectfully submitted,

5 LOWELL & ASSOCIATES, PLLC

6
7 By: /s/ Abbe David Lowell
Abbe David Lowell

8
9 MCLANE, BEDNARSKI & LITT, LLP

10 By: /s/ Marilyn E. Bednarski
Marilyn E. Bednarski

11 Attorneys for Defendant David Huerta
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

TABLE OF CONTENTS

1
2	INTRODUCTION .....	1
3	FACTUAL BACKGROUND.....	2
4	I. Federal Agents Serve and Execute Search Warrant and Conduct Immigration
5	Raid—and Surveillance Peaceful Protesters. ....	2
6	II. Mr. Huerta Joins Peaceful Protest Outside Ambiance Apparel.....	4
7	III. Agent Ribner and Officer Crook Retaliate Against Mr. Huerta with Brutal
8	Takedown and Arrest. ....	7
9	IV. The Charge Filed Against Mr. Huerta, Downgraded to A Misdemeanor.....	11
10	ARGUMENT.....	12
11	I. Protest, Criticisms, and Challenges of Law Enforcement Actions are Protected
12	Speech Under the First Amendment. ....	13
13	II. The First Sentence of Section 1501 is Facially Overbroad, in Violation of the
14	First Amendment.....	15
15	A. Prohibition of Obstructing, Resisting, or Opposing Federal Law
16	Enforcement Activities Criminalizes a Substantial Amount of Protected
17	Speech. ....	16
18	B. No Limiting Construction Remedies the First Paragraph’s Overbreadth
19	... 23
20	III. Section 1501 is Unconstitutionally Vague in Violation of the First
21	Amendment and the Due Process Clause.....	25
22	IV. The Information Results From the Government’s Retaliatory and Brutal
23	Arrest of Mr. Huerta, in Violation of his First and Fourth Amendment Rights.
24	...30
25	A. Mr. Huerta was Arrested in Retaliation for His Protected Speech.....	30
26	B. In Effectuating Mr. Huerta’s Arrest, the Government Used
27	Unreasonable Excessive Force, in Violation of the Fourth Amendment.
28	...34
	C. Dismissal Provides the Only Remedy for These Violations. ....	36
	CONCLUSION.....	37

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Anti Police-Terror Project v. City of Oakland , 477 F. Supp. 3d 1066 (N.D. Cal. 2020) .....	33
Ashcroft v. Free Speech Coalition , 535 U.S. 234 (2002) .....	15
Ballentine v. Tucker , 28 F.4th 54 (9th Cir. 2022) .....	31
Bivens v. Six Unknown Fed. Narcotics Agents , 403 U.S. 388 (1971) .....	36
Black Lives Matter Seattle-King Cnty. v. City of Seattle, Seattle Police Dep’t , 466 F. Supp. 3d 1206 (W.D. Wash. 2020) .....	14
Blankenhorn v. City of Orange , 485 F.3d 463 (9th Cir. 2007) .....	36
Broadrick v. Oklahoma , 413 U.S. 601 (1973) .....	16
Brooks v. N. Carolina Dep’t of Correction , 984 F. Supp. 940 (E.D.N.C. 1997) ....	19
Brown v. Louisiana , 383 U.S. 131 (1966) .....	14
Butcher v. Knudsen , 38 F.4th 1163 (9th Cir. 2022) .....	27
Carr v. Cnty. of San Diego , 2021 WL 4244596 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 17, 2021) .....	35
Carter v. State , 222 Ga.App. 397 (1996) .....	19
Chicago Headline Club v. Noem , 2025 WL 3240782 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 20, 2025) ... 11, 22
City of Houston v. Hill , 482 U.S. 451 (1987) .....	13, 14, 15, 17
Cnty. of Los Angeles, Calif. v. Mendez , 581 U.S. 420 (2017) .....	34
Collins v. Jordan , 110 F.3d 1363 (9th Cir. 1996) .....	13, 14, 30
Connick v. Myers , 461 U.S. 138 (1983) .....	31
Duran v. City of Douglas , 904 F.2d 1372 (9th Cir. 1990) .....	13, 16, 28
Edwards v. South Carolina , 372 U.S. 229 (1963) .....	19
Egbert v. Boule , 596 U.S. 482 (2022) .....	36
Fortson v. City of Los Angeles , 628 F. Supp. 3d 976 (C.D. Cal. 2022) .....	35
Garrison v. Louisiana , 379 U.S. 64 (1964) .....	14
Gibson v. United States , 781 F.2d 1334 (9th Cir.1986) .....	30, 31

1	Goldey v. Fields , 606 U.S. 942 (2025) .....	36
2	Graham v. Connor , 490 U.S. 386 (1989) .....	35
3	Gravelet-Blondin v. Shelton , 728 F.3d 1086 (9th Cir. 2013) .....	35
4	Guice v. City of Fairfield , 2006 WL 8458911 (E.D. Cal. Nov. 16, 2006) .....	18
5	Hamilton v. City of San Bernardino , 325 F. Supp. 2d 1087 (C.D. Cal. 2004) .....	14
6	Headwaters Forest Def. v. Cnty. of Humboldt , 276 F.3d 1125 (9th Cir. 2002) .....	35
7	Hill v. City of Houston , 764 F.2d 1156 (5th Cir. 1985) .....	17
8	Hoyland v. McMenemy , 869 F.3d 644 (8th Cir. 2017) .....	19
9	Hunt v. City of Los Angeles , 638 F.3d 703 (9th Cir. 2011) .....	25
10	Illinois v. Trump , 2025 WL 2886645 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 10, 2025) .....	11, 27
11	Index Newspapers LLC v. United States Marshals Service , 977 F.3d 817 (9th Cir.
12	2020) .....	29
13	King v. Ambs , 519 F.3d 607 (6th Cir. 2008) .....	24
14	Los Angeles Press Club v. City of Los Angeles , 2025 WL 2640421 (C.D. Cal. Sept.
15	10, 2025) .....	11, 33
16	Mackinney v. Nielsen , 69 F.3d 1002 (9th Cir. 1995) .....	13
17	Marinello v. United States , 584 U.S. 1 (2018) .....	18
18	Miller v. United States , 230 F.2d 486 (5th Cir. 1956) .....	20
19	NAACP of San Jose/Silicon Valley v. City of San Jose , 562 F. Supp. 3d 382 (N.D.
20	Cal. 2021) .....	33
21	NAACP v. Claiborne Hardware Co. , 458 U.S. 886 (1982) .....	13, 31
22	Palmer v. Sanderson , 9 F.3d 1433 (9th Cir. 1993) .....	35
23	People v. Vasquez , 465 Mich. 83 (2001) .....	23
24	Police Dep't of City of Chicago v. Mosley , 408 U.S. 92 (1972) .....	19
25	Porter v. Martinez , 68 F.4th 429 (9th Cir. 2023) .....	14
26	Reed v. Town of Gilbert , 576 U.S. 155 (2015) .....	21
27	Resek v. City of Huntington Beach , 41 F. App'x 57 (9th Cir. 2002) .....	15
28	Snyder v. Phelps , 562 U.S. 443 (2011) .....	19

1	Tucson v. City of Seattle , 91 F.4th 1318 (9th Cir. 2024).....	23
2	United States v. Barrera-Moreno , 951 F.2d 1089 (9th Cir. 1991).....	30
3	United States v. Baugh , 187 F.3d 1037 (9th Cir. 1999) .....	14
4	United States v. Bonds , 784 F.3d 582 (9th Cir. 2015).....	21
5	United States v. Contreras , 2025 WL 2858034 (W.D. Tex. Sept. 18, 2025) .....	24
6	United States v. Giampino , 680 F.2d 898 (2d Cir. 1982).....	24
7	United States v. Gonzalez , 122 F.3d 1383 (11th Cir. 1997).....	25
8	United States v. Grace , 461 U.S. 171 (1983).....	19
9	United States v. Hansen , 599 U.S. 762 (2023).....	15
10	United States v. McDonald , 26 Fed.Cas. 1074 (C.C.E.D. Wis. 1879).....	20
11	United States v. Moore , 958 F.2d 646 (5th Cir. 1992).....	25
12	United States v. Poocha , 259 F.3d 1077 (9th Cir. 2001) .....	13, 14
13	United States v. Quintanilla-Chavez , 2025 WL 2982191 (W.D. Tex. Oct. 20, 2025)
14	.....	37
15	United States v. Reyes-Lopez , 141 F. App'x 533 (9th Cir. 2005).....	24
16	United States v. Rundo , 990 F.3d 709 (9th Cir. 2021) .....	23
17	United States v. Sommerstedt , 752 F.2d 1494 (9th Cir. 1985).....	20
18	United States v. Williams , 553 U.S. 285 (2008).....	17
19	Vill. of Hoffman Ests. v. Flipside , 455 U.S. 489 (1982).....	25
20	Wilson v. Kittoe , 229 F. Supp. 2d 520 (W.D. Va. 2002).....	19
21	Young v. Cnty. of Los Angeles , 655 F.3d 1156 (9th Cir. 2011).....	35
22	Statutes
23	18 U.S.C. § 111.....	24
24	18 U.S.C. § 1501.....	passim
25	Other Authorities
26	Obstruct, Black's Law Dictionary (12th ed. 2024) .....	18
27	Oppose, Oxford English Dictionary (revised ed. 2004).....	17

1	Resist, Oxford English Dictionary (revised ed. 2010) ..... 18
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28	v

INTRODUCTION

On June 6, 2025, the president of the Service Employees International Union of California (SEIU), David Huerta, did what he has done all of his career as a labor leader and organizer, protesting what he saw as injustice. For his constitutionally protected speech at a lawful protest, 59-year-old Mr. Huerta was shoved to the ground, tackled, dog-piled, pepper sprayed, arrested, and charged with violating 18 U.S.C. § 1501.

From the time he arrived at the scene of an ongoing protest to the time he was taken to the ground, Mr. Huerta exercised his First Amendment rights to challenge and criticize law enforcement. Standing on the other side of a closed gate from federal agents, he yelled at them, gave them the finger, questioned their morality, ethics, and lawfulness of their methods of immigration enforcement. He briefly sat in protest in front of the closed gate, joined others in a picket line, filmed federal agents, and protested on a public sidewalk while an unmarked white van approached and then drove through the gate. He engaged only in classic forms of protected speech.

Notwithstanding the facts of this case, because a search warrant happened to be served and executed in the building on the other side of the gate, the government charged him with a crime that prohibits the knowing and willful obstruction, resistance, or opposition to law enforcement officers conducting a specific act—here, the service and execution of that search warrant. This charge reveals that the statutory basis for this case, the first sentence of Section 1501, is so overbroad that it encompasses substantial protected speech and is therefore unconstitutional. In addition, because the words of the statute's first sentence are so broad and so vague—for example here covering alleged conduct that at most was auxiliary to any search warrant—the charge brought under the statute also violates Mr. Huerta's rights to free speech and due process as applied to him. And as the facts of his arrest

1 demonstrate that federal agents targeted him specifically for his protected speech
 2 with unreasonable brutality, this Court should use its supervisory powers to provide
 3 him with the only redress still available for the violation of his First and Fourth
 4 Amendment rights. With a menu of three separate reasons for the unconstitutionality
 5 of the charge against Mr. Huerta, this Court should dismiss the Information with 6 prejudice.

7 FACTUAL BACKGROUND<sup>2</sup>

8 I. Federal Agents Serve and Execute Search Warrant and Conduct 9 Immigration Raid—and Surveillance Peaceful Protesters.

10 On the morning of June 6, 2025, agents from the United States Department of 11 Homeland Security (DHS), the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), the Drug
 12 Enforcement Administration (DEA), and Immigration and Customs Enforcement 13 (ICE), served and executed a search warrant at the Ambiance Apparel warehouse in 14 downtown Los Angeles, California. The search warrant was issued on June 5, 2025,
 15 by Magistrate Judge Margo A. Rocconi in Case No. 2:25-mj-03427. Bednarski
 16 Declaration, Ex. A. The warrant was limited to one premises (2415 East 15th Street, 17 Los Angeles, California, 90021) and authorized the seizure of records, documents, 18 media, and digital devices related to Ambiance’s suspected violations of federal 19 immigration laws and related criminal activities. See id. It did not authorize the 20 arrest or detention of individuals. See id. Federal agents served the search warrant 21 at 9:20 a.m. and conducted the search for the next few hours. See Ex. B. Along with 22 the execution of the search warrant, at some point, federal agents arrested individuals 23

---

24 <sup>2</sup> The factual representations in this motion should not be disputed as they are based 25 almost entirely on descriptions and materials produced by the government or images 26 that speak for themselves (e.g., Exhibits M, N, and O, which are videos of Mr.
 27 Huerta’s arrest gathered from public sources). If the government raises any disputes
 28 of fact that the Court believes have to be resolved as part of this motion, Mr. Huerta respectfully requests additional discovery and an evidentiary hearing.

1 for suspected violations of federal immigration laws. Supervisory officers were also 2 present at the target address and for the search.

3 Other officers, however, were assigned roles to monitor and conduct
4 countersurveillance of anticipated protest activity. One, DHS Officer Jeremy 5 Crossen, was assigned “in an undercover capacity to document potential protestors”
6 and arrived at Ambiance around 9:00 a.m. on June 6. See Ex. C. Wearing “all black 7 clothing with a cross-shoulder bag, to move surreptitiously through a potential crowd
8 and blend in with as if part of any potential protestors,” Officer Crossen patrolled in 9 front of the Ambiance front gate and among the crowd, speaking with and taking 10 photos and videos of individuals arriving at the location. Id. at 2–3; Ex. D at 1–2.
11 He texted photos, videos, and commentary to Homeland Security Group Supervisor
12 Ryan Ribner, including relaying the number of people arriving at the gate and the 13 fact that they were filming and “calling people.” Id. at 1. He texted that the protest
14 was “organized” and noted that “[i]t’s going to be fun going through this video later.”
15 Id. (emphasis added).

16 As protesters continued to arrive, Officer Crossen continued to pretend to be 17 part of the outside group to film and text updates to Agent Ribner. One woman, who 18 he identified as from “CHIRLA”<sup>3</sup> was filming, “on the phone narrating,” and 19 “[c]alling out officers descriptions!!!” Id. at 2–3. Agent Ribner responded “ID her,”
20 and Crossen noted that “[s]o far she’s peaceful but non-stop phone calls and calling 21 out agency markings and description.” Id. at 3. Officer Crossen continued to 22 identify different protesters and their organizations, providing videos, photos, and 23 specific information about them and their vehicles to Agent Ribner. See id. While 24 the protesters were loud, no produced records show the protesters taking any action 25

---

26
27 <sup>3</sup> The Coalition for Humane Immigrant Rights (CHIRLA) is a leading immigrants
28 advocacy organization in Los Angeles, California.

1 to threaten or try to interfere with the law enforcement activities occurring inside the 2 gate, but rather show them peacefully demonstrating on a public sidewalk. Officer
3 Crossen also spoke with members in the crowd, including telling Agent Ribner that 4 he “got a bunch of them to go to the wrong side. I told them there was a gate in the 5 alley I think.” Id. at 5.

6 II. Mr. Huerta Joins Peaceful Protest Outside Ambiance Apparel.

7 As the search progressed unabated inside the Ambiance warehouse, the 8 demonstration grew on the public sidewalk outside the front gate—with individuals
9 filming, chanting, and yelling profanities at the officers standing by the gate. Ex. B.
10 at 7. David Huerta, the president of SEIU California, arrived at the protest outside
11 Ambiance, more than two hours after the search warrant was served and operations 12 began inside the gate, at approximately 11:49 a.m. See Ex. P. He joined with the 13 other protesters congregating on the public sidewalk at the front gate of Ambiance,
14 walked up to the gate, and began criticizing and heckling the officers. At around 15 11:55 a.m., Mr. Huerta briefly participated in a sit-in at the front gate. See Ex. I.
16 Agent Ribner and Officer Carey Crook stood on the other side of the gate:

26 See id. Mr. Huerta asked them, “How are you keeping us safe?” Agent Ribner’s 27 response was: “You are gonna go to jail. You are not impeding us. You are not 28

1 impeding us. You're going to jail, [unintelligible from 0:00:09–00:11] and you're 2 going to jail.” Id. at 0:00:01–00:12. Mr. Huerta then repeatedly asked him, “What 3 are you doing?” and told him, “I can’t hear you through your fuckin’ mask,” and 4 pointed at Agent Ribner. Id. at 0:00:14–00:17. Agent Ribner can be heard replying:
5 “You’re gonna go to jail, you’re going to jail.” Id. at 0:00:17. For the next few
6 minutes, Mr. Huerta continued to protest in front of the gate, including conversing
7 with Agent Ribner, Officer Crook, and other officers, including, according to agents’
8 after-the-fact reports, “aggressively”<sup>4</sup> asking the officers to identify themselves,
9 stating “What are you going to do... Where’s your fucking badge number... What’s 10 your fucking name?” Ex. B at 9. He also allegedly stated: “You’re not police!
11 You’re not fucking police! You’re not keeping me safe!” Ex. C at 6. At around 12 11:59 a.m., Mr. Huerta participated in a picket line with other protesters, where they 13 walked in a circle on the public sidewalk in front of the gate. See Ex. J; Ex. C at 7.
14 For each of these actions, from approximately 11:49 a.m. to 12:14 p.m., no law
15 enforcement activity was occurring in front of or behind the gate. No vehicles tried 16 to enter in or out, and the gate remained closed between the protesters and law 17 enforcement.

18 The reports and video evidence provided by the government suggest that Mr.
19 Huerta heckled Agent Ribner, criticizing the immigration enforcement policies of 20 President Donald Trump, and “asked either about the purpose or legit impact of 21 agents’ duties.” Ex. B at 9. “Based on” Mr. Huerta’s actions above, Agent Ribner 22 texted Officer Crossen to “watch HUERTA by indicating ‘red shirt[.]’” Id. at 9; see 23 also, Ex. D at 4. He spoke to DEA agents and “informed them that HUERTA . . .
24

---

25 <sup>4</sup> DHS uses the term “aggressive” liberally throughout its reports to describe benign 26 activities, for example, describing a man in a kerchief and a beret as having “an 27 “aggressive appearance.” Ex. B at 8. They described Mr. Huerta as “appear[ing] to 28 be “aggressive and angry by his voice, demeanor, and facial features.” Id. at 9.

1 would highly likely block or impede law enforcement vehicles, cause damage to 2 USG property, or commit a battery against agents as they attempt to depart.” Id. at 3 9–10. The evidence produced shows only Mr. Huerta’s questioning, heckling, and 4 protest activity—but there is nothing to indicate that he would block, cause damage,
5 or commit battery.

6 At no time before Mr. Huerta’s arrest did government reports describe any 7 violent activity, fighting words, or true threats. Nor do they describe Mr. Huerta at 8 any point getting physical with any officer or undercover agent. Instead, reports 9 describe the crowd as “walking around and looking inside and making comments.”
10 Id. at 9. A truck played loud music “with lyrics that stated, ‘Fuck Donald Trump...’
11 repeatedly.” Id. at 10. In his report, Agent Ribner only conjectured: “the controlled 12 chaos was done purposely to create a tense environment to implement an atmosphere 13 of intimidation which could cause agents to make mistakes that could ultimately 14 disrupt and impede the law enforcement operation.” Id. at 10. Agent Ribner 15 prophesized to another agent “the high potential for an arrest due to an incident.” Id.

16 At approximately 12:02 p.m., Agent Ribner was informed by other federal 17 agents that a white government van, a “prisoner van” to transport detainees, would 18 arrive at Ambiance for transport of individuals detained inside the facility. Id. Agent
19 Ribner stated in his report that he was concerned about the protesters damaging or 20 blocking the vehicle, and planned for federal agents to protect the van. Id. DHS
21 reports additionally state that Agent Ribner “went on and informed HUERTA again
22 not to block or impede the USG vehicle. HUERTA said that the truck isn’t owned
23 by him, referring to the pickup truck that was partially blocking the driveway. SSA
24 Ribner told HUERTA that he was not referring to the truck, but rather HUERTA
25 himself shouldn’t block or impede the USG vehicle that would be arriving.
26 HUERTA loudly repeated, ‘it’s a public sidewalk.’” Id.

1           III. Agent Ribner and Officer Crook Retaliate Against Mr. Huerta
2           with Brutal Takedown and Arrest.

3           At approximately 12:15 p.m., the unmarked white government transport van
4 arrived, with dashboard and front grill emergency lights, which the driver briefly
5 activated as he approached and entered the driveway to Ambiance. See Ex. K. At 6 that point, the gate was closed such that the van could not enter the premises in any 7 event. Id. As the gate was then opened, Officer Crook, followed closely behind by 8 Agent Ribner, exited the front gate and made a beeline for Mr. Huerta, and the van
9 turned on its “air horn.”<sup>5</sup> Ex. L at 3; Ex. K at 0:00:03–00:12. The video evidence
10 produced by the government shows Mr. Huerta standing at an angle off to the side
11 of the van’s front bumper, with his hands on his hips. Ex. K at 0:00:03–00:12. It
12 does not show him in front of the van. However, at least three other protesters stood 13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24

25 _____
26 <sup>5</sup> The van driver stated that he activated the van’s lights and “air horn . . . to let law
27 enforcement at [Ambiance] know he was there”—and not to disperse the protesters
28 who had amassed on the sidewalk by the gate. Ex. L at 3 (emphasis added).

1 in the driveway, directly in front of the vehicle, and Agent Ribner and Officer Crook
2 rushed right past them to confront Mr. Huerta. See id.

11 Ex. K at 00:00:09–00:11.

12 As Mr. Huerta, already to the side of the van, took an additional step away, 13 Officer Crook pushed him back two more steps. Id. at 00:00:10–00:12. With two 14 hands, Officer Crook shoved Mr. Huerta to the ground. Id. at 00:00:12–00:13. Both 15 shoves are captured on government video:
16

1 See Ex. K. Mr. Huerta never laid a hand on either officer that day. After he was 2 shoved to the ground, Mr. Huerta fell hard onto his back. Officer Crook then turned 3 to move others out of the front of the van. He did not shove them to the ground or 4 tackle them. Instead, he simply spread out his arms and stated “Move, move, move,”
5 see Ex. L, or at one point, picked a protester up and moved her out of the way. Ex.
6 K at 0:00:30. Agent Ribner ran over to Mr. Huerta, and rolled him over onto his 7 stomach, then his hands and knees, Ex. K at 0:00:15, repeating, as he did before the 8 van was even on the scene: “You’re going to jail.” Ex. N at 00:00:01–00:05.

9 See Ex. N. None of the other people actually standing in front of the van, including 10 the woman who Officer Crook picked up and removed, were arrested or charged.

11       Officer Crook then returned to Mr. Huerta and Agent Ribner, crossing in front 12 of the van to do so. Ex. K at 0:00:34. He jumped on top of Mr. Huerta, who at this 13 point is lying on his stomach on the ground, Ex. O at 0:00:01, with his forehead mere 14 inches from a curb. Ex. M at 0:00:19. Agent Ribner pinned his back with one of his 15 knees. See id. Agent Ribner and Officer Crook tugged at Mr. Huerta’s arms (despite 16 the fact that agents essentially were sitting on top of him) and attempted to remove 17 Mr. Huerta’s arms from beneath his body. Despite the fact that Mr. Huerta put up
18 no resistance, Officer Crook moved off of Mr. Huerta’s back, and Agent Ribner then 19 sprayed pepper spray into the palm of his (Agent Ribner’s) hand and rubbed it all
20 over Mr. Huerta’s face, including his eyes, nose, and mouth, while banging his head 21 into the curb. See Ex. M at 0:00:01–00:08. Agent Ribner and Cooks then climbed 22 on top of him again, and continued to try to pull his arms out from underneath him.
23 Id. at 0:00:08–00:22. When he couldn’t pull out Mr. Huerta’s arm, Officer Crook
24 got off of Mr. Huerta’s back and pushed down roughly on Mr. Huerta’s shoulder.
25 Id. at 0:00:37–00:39. Mr. Huerta repeatedly stated, “I’ll get up.” Id. at 0:00:45.
26 Agent Ribner instructed him to put his hands behind his back, and Mr. Huerta,
27 repeated again that he will get up, but that he has a bad shoulder. Id. at 0:00:45–

1 01:03. Agent Ribner and Officer Crook wrenched Mr. Huerta's arms behind his 2 back regardless, and video evidence shows Mr. Huerta's face twisting in pain. Id. at 3 0:01:03–01:12. Agents then lifted him up by his shoulders to a standing position.
4 Id. at 0:01:12–01:24. The protesters nearby loudly denounced the agents' actions,
5 but for the duration of the arrest, none came close to interrupting, as Mr. Huerta,
6 Agent Ribner, and Officer Crook were completely surrounded by other agents.

21 See Ex. M. In his interview about the events that day taken three months later by 22 prosecutors on September 10, 2025, Agent Ribner declared that “HUERTA and 23 other protesters are ‘vicious, horrible people,’” in reference to being shown a still 24 photo of the takedown video of Mr. Huerta. Ex. F at 3.

25 Mr. Huerta is not the first or only protester who has been brutalized and 26 detained for his protected activities in the past months as part of the administration's 27 new policies. Other incidents where anti-ICE protesters were targeted have been

1 well documented. See Meg Anderson, Tackles, projectiles and gunfire: Many fear
 2 ICE tactics are growing more violent, NPR (Oct. 13, 2025),
 3 https://www.npr.org/2025/10/13/nx-s1-5566785/ice-dhs-immigration-tactics-more-
 4 violent; see also, Los Angeles Press Club v. City of Los Angeles, 2025 WL 2640421,
 5 at *2 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 10, 2025) (detailing excessive force used against journalists
 6 during protests in Los Angeles); Illinois v. Trump, 2025 WL 2886645, at *4 (N.D.
 7 Ill. Oct. 10, 2025) (detailing excessive force used against protesters during in 8 Illinois); Chicago Headline Club v. Noem, 2025 WL 3240782, at *19 (N.D. Ill. Nov.
 9 20, 2025) (same).

10 IV. The Charge Filed Against Mr. Huerta, Downgraded to A 11 Misdemeanor.

12 The government initially charged Mr. Huerta on June 8, 2025, with violating 13 18 U.S.C. § 372, a felony of conspiring to “impede” an officer. United States v.
 14 Huerta, No. 2:25-mj-03504, ECF 1 (C.D. Cal.) (Complaint). The criminal complaint
 15 in that charge describes or attempts to address what Mr. Huerta is actually alleged 16 to have done. It contends, for example, that Mr. Huerta “stood in front” of the path 17 of the unmarked government van “with his hands on his hips,” see Compl. ¶ 23, and 18 that other protesters “continued to block the van and had to be physically removed 19 from the van’s path” to permit it to enter through the front gate. Id. ¶ 25. However,
 20 the government dismissed that charge and instead is proceeding on a Section 1501
 21 misdemeanor, which criminalizes different conduct. Again, no other person 22 described as “blocking the van” was arrested or charged—only Mr. Huerta, who had 23 engaged verbally and directly with Officers Crossen and Agent Ribner.

24 The Information charging Mr. Huerta with violating Section 1501 was filed
 25 on October 17, 2025. ECF 29. The Information’s description of his alleged criminal
 26 activity is conclusory and uninformative, and states, that on June 6, 2025, Mr. Huerta 27 “and others known and unknown, each aiding and abetting the other, did knowingly 28

1 and willfully, obstruct, resist, and oppose an officer of the United States, and any
2 such other person duly authorized, in serving and attempting to serve and execute .
3 . . a search warrant for the premises at 2415 East 15th Street, Los Angeles, California
4 90021 [Ambiance Apparel].” ECF 29. Since then, when asked to specify what 5 conduct Mr. Huerta had engaged in that constituted his unlawful activity, the 6 government stated its “theory of liability” was Mr. Huerta’s “course of conduct.”
7 Specifically,

8 Mr. Huerta’s course of conduct from approximately 11:49 a.m., when he 9 arrived at Search Warrant location, to approximately 12:15 p.m., when he 10 was detained by federal agents. This course of conduct includes, but is not 11 limited to, Mr. Huerta (a) blocking the entrance to the Search Warrant 12 location; (b) encouraging other individuals, both verbally and 13 nonverbally, to sit down on the ground and similarly block the entrance; 14 (c) encouraging individuals to form a circle blocking the entrance to the 15 Search warrant location; (d) encouraging others to “stop the vehicles”
16 attempting to enter the Search Warrant location; and (e) blocking the 17 pathway of a law enforcement vehicle attempting to enter the Search
18 Warrant location.

19 Ex. P.

20 ARGUMENT

21 Under the First Amendment, Mr. Huerta has an inalienable right to criticize, 22 challenge, and protest government actions—even when such protest is directed at 23 law enforcement activities. Dismissal of the Information is proper on three 24 constitutional grounds. First, the first sentence of 18 U.S.C. § 1501 is facially
25 overbroad in violation of the First Amendment, as its three operative verbs—
26 obstruct, resist, and oppose—criminalize substantial protected First Amendment 27 activities. Second, and alternatively, the statute is unconstitutionally vague as 28

1 applied to Mr. Huerta, as his criminal charge rests solely on protected speech and 2 protest, and the statute draws no discernable line between protected speech and 3 unprotected conduct. Third, the charge arose from federal agents' retaliatory, brutal
4 arrest of Mr. Huerta for his protected speech in violation of the First and Fourth
5 Amendments, and this Court should exercise its supervisory authority to dismiss the 6 Information.

7 I. Protest, Criticisms, and Challenges of Law Enforcement Actions
8 are Protected Speech Under the First Amendment.

9 There is no more sacred an American right than the right to dissent against 10 government abuse of its people. For this reason, "[e]xpression[s] of disapproval" 11 toward law enforcement, no matter how profane or critical, fall "squarely within the 12 protective umbrella of the First Amendment and any action to punish or deter such 13 speech—such as stopping or hassling the speaker—is categorically prohibited by the 14 Constitution." Duran v. City of Douglas, 904 F.2d 1372, 1378 (9th Cir. 1990).

15 "[T]he First Amendment protects a significant amount of verbal criticism and 16 challenge directed at police officers." City of Houston v. Hill, 482 U.S. 451, 461
17 (1987). It is well established that passionate or aggressive rhetoric and even 18 profanity are considered protected speech. See Collins v. Jordan, 110 F.3d 1363, 19 1371 (9th Cir. 1996) ("Speech that stirs passions, resentment or anger is fully 20 protected by the First Amendment."); NAACP v. Claiborne Hardware Co., 458 U.S.
21 886, 928 (1982) ("Strong and effective extemporaneous rhetoric cannot be nicely
22 channeled in purely dulcet phrases."); Mackinney v. Nielsen, 69 F.3d 1002, 1007
23 (9th Cir. 1995) ("Even when crass and inarticulate, verbal challenges to the police 24 are protected."). This speech is entitled to comparably more protection when 25 directed at government officials or law enforcement. See United States v. Poocha, 26 259 F.3d 1077, 1082 (9th Cir. 2001) (finding speech directed at law enforcement is 27 subject to greater First Amendment protections); Garrison v. Louisiana, 379 U.S.

1 64, 73–74 (1964) (holding that even some unprotected speech may not be the basis
2 of liability when directed at a public official “if the freedoms of expression are to 3 have the breathing space that they need to survive”); Hamilton v. City of San 4 Bernardino, 325 F. Supp. 2d 1087, 1092 (C.D. Cal. 2004) (“There is a particularly 5 pronounced constitutional interest in protecting speech critical of law
6 enforcement.”). And aggressive gestures do not reduce the constitutional protections
7 on speech. See Poocha, 259 F.3d at 1082 (defendant “clenching his fists and sticking
8 out his chest” did not strip his speech of First Amendment protection).<sup>6</sup>

9 The First Amendment’s protection goes beyond verbal challenges of law
10 enforcement. See Black Lives Matter Seattle-King Cnty. v. City of Seattle, Seattle
11 Police Dep’t, 466 F. Supp. 3d 1206, 1212 (W.D. Wash. 2020) (“[P]eople have a 12 right to demonstrate and protest government officials, police officers being no
13 exception.”). “[M]arch[ing] and other protest activities clearly constitute protected
14 speech.” United States v. Baugh, 187 F.3d 1037, 1042 (9th Cir. 1999); Collins, 110 15 F.3d at 1371 (“Activities such as demonstrations, protest marches, and picketing are 16 clearly protected by the First Amendment.”). And the First Amendment protects a 17 certain level of civil disobedience, such as sit-ins in public places or marches in 18 public streets. See City of Houston, 482 U.S. at 472 (“[T]he First Amendment 19 recognizes, wisely we think, that a certain amount of expressive disorder not only is 20 inevitable in a society committed to individual freedom, but must itself be protected
21 if that freedom would survive.”); Porter v. Martinez, 68 F.4th 429, 438 (9th Cir.
22 2023) (listing “staging a sit in” as a type of conduct that is protected speech under 23 the First Amendment); Brown v. Louisiana, 383 U.S. 131, 141–42 (1966) (holding 24

---

25
26
27 <sup>6</sup> True, incitement, fighting words, and true threats are not protected by the First 28 Amendment. But these exceptions are narrow, and none are at issue here.

1 that a silent sit-in to protest racial segregation in a public library was protected
2 expression).

3 Spirited or silent, profane or polite, criticism and protest of law enforcement
4 activities constitute highly protected speech under the First Amendment. “[T]he job
5 of police officers requires a thick skin.” Resek v. City of Huntington Beach, 41 F.
6 App’x 57, 59 (9th Cir. 2002). Statutes that prohibit and chill such speech are subject 7 to the highest levels of scrutiny, and arrests and charges resulting from them should 8 be viewed with significant skepticism.

9 II. The First Sentence of Section 1501 is Facially Overbroad, in 10 Violation of the First Amendment.

11 As “even minor punishments can chill protected speech,” overbroad criminal 12 statutes pose a particular threat to the exercise of First Amendment rights. Ashcroft
13 v. Free Speech Coalition, 535 U.S. 234, 244 (2002). If a “statute ‘prohibits a 14 substantial amount of protected speech’ relative to its ‘plainly legitimate sweep,’ 15 then society’s interest in free expression outweighs its interest in the statute’s lawful 16 applications.” United States v. Hansen, 599 U.S. 762, 770 (2023). “Criminal 17 statutes must be scrutinized with particular care,” and “those that make unlawful a 18 substantial amount of constitutionally protected conduct may be held facially invalid
19 even if they also have legitimate application.” City of Houston, 482 U.S. at 459.

20 The statute at issue here, Section 1501, states:

21 Whoever knowingly and willfully obstructs, resists, or opposes any 22 officer of the United States, or other person duly authorized, in serving,
23 or attempting to serve or execute, any legal or judicial writ or process 24 of any court of the United States, or United States magistrate judge; or

25
26 Whoever assaults, beats, or wounds any officer or other person duly 27 authorized, knowing him to be such officer, or other person so duly 28

1 authorized, in serving or executing any such writ, rule, order, process,
 2 warrant, or other legal or judicial writ or process—

3 Shall, except as otherwise provided by law, be fined under this title or 4 imprisoned not more than one year, or both.
 5

6 18 U.S.C. § 1501. According to the Information, Mr. Huerta was only charged for 7 violations of the first sentence, for “knowingly and willfully obstruct[ing], 8 resist[ing], and oppos[ing] an officer of the United States . . . in serving and 9 attempting to serve and execute . . . a search warrant.” ECF 29. This sentence’s 10 plain language sweeps in a wide swath of protected speech, including criticisms, 11 challenges, objections, and protest of law enforcement policies and activity. Such 12 speech “is not a crime.” Duran, 904 F.2d at 1377. Any true criminal activity or 13 unprotected speech is instead punished under the second sentence of the statute.

14 Mr. Huerta’s arrest and resulting criminal charge under Section 1501’s first 15 sentence reveal its unconstitutional overbreadth. Striking a portion of a criminal 16 statute for facial overbreadth may be “strong medicine,” Broadrick v. Oklahoma, 17 413 U.S. 601, 613 (1973), but the first sentence requires this precise prescription.
 18 This Court should strike the first sentence from Section 1501 and dismiss the 19 Information.

20 A. Prohibition of Obstructing, Resisting, or Opposing Federal 21 Law Enforcement Activities Criminalizes a Substantial
 22 Amount of Protected Speech.

23 The plain language of the first sentence of Section 1501 criminalizes First 24 Amendment-protected activities. Its operative verbs, obstruct, resist, and oppose, 25 cover verbal criticism and challenges to law enforcement activities, as well as 26 assembly, protest and picketing, and its other clauses provide no meaningful 27 limitations. Particularly when viewed in contrast to the second sentence of the

1 statute, as well as in the context of Mr. Huerta’s charged activity, it is clear that its 2 plainly legitimate sweep prohibits a substantial amount of protected speech.

3 Assessment of a statute’s breadth begins with its text. See United States v.
4 Williams, 553 U.S. 285, 293 (2008). The term “opposes” has the clearest
5 unconstitutional ramifications. In City of Houston, the Supreme Court invalidated a 6 Texas ordinance, Code of Ordinances, City of Houston, Texas, § 34–11(a) (1984),
7 criminalizing mere opposition to a law enforcement officer for unconstitutional
8 overbreadth. 482 U.S. at 467. There, an individual was arrested after shouting at 9 police officers to “pick on somebody your own size,” under the part of the ordinance 10 that made it “unlawful for any person to . . . in any manner oppose, molest, abuse or 11 interrupt any policeman in the execution of his duty.” Id. at 454–55 (emphasis 12 added). Construing the plain terms of the ordinance, the Supreme Court found that 13 the prohibition of opposition and interruption of police officers criminalized “verbal 14 criticism and challenge directed at police officers,” which is protected by the First 15 Amendment. Id. at 461. In coming to this conclusion, City of Houston emphasized 16 a now well-established principle: “The freedom of individuals verbally to oppose or 17 challenge police action without thereby risking arrest is one of the principal 18 characteristics by which we distinguish a free nation from a police state.” Id. at 462– 19 63 (emphasis added).

20 City of Houston’s interpretation of “oppose” makes sense in light of its 21 definitions. “To oppose” can mean “to confront (a person) with hard questions or 22 objections,” “to interrogate, question,” “to set (something) against or in opposition
23 to,” “to place or position as an obstacle,” “to contend, fight,” and “to be antagonistic 24 or hostile to.” Oppose, Oxford English Dictionary (revised ed. 2004). According to 25 the Fifth Circuit opinion affirmed in City of Houston, it can also mean to have “an 26 adverse opinion concerning” or “to offer arguments against.” Hill v. City of 27 Houston, 764 F.2d 1156, 1163 (5th Cir. 1985). As the Fifth Circuit noted, “[i]f a 28

1 mother pleads with a policeman to ‘spare my baby’ while the policeman arrests her 2 son in front of their home, she has ‘opposed’ the policeman in the execution of his 3 duties.” Id.

4 These same definitions apply to Section 1501’s term “opposes.” Opposition 5 to law enforcement activity includes myriad forms of protected speech—particularly 6 verbal criticism and challenges of their policies and actions. See, e.g., Guice v. City
 7 of Fairfield, 2006 WL 8458911, at *3 (E.D. Cal. Nov. 16, 2006) (“[A] refusal to 8 consent to a search is a verbal opposition to police action and, consequently, 9 protected speech.”). Here, Mr. Huerta stood on a public sidewalk and protested the 10 federal government’s immigration enforcement policies, and agents’ enforcement
 11 thereof, a key issue of public debate. He chanted, questioned, and heckled law
 12 enforcement officers standing on the other side of the gate. His speech was rousing, 13 passionate, antagonistic, and unquestionably protected by the First Amendment. But 14 in the government’s view, he opposed the law enforcement activity occurring at 15 Ambiance.

16 Like “opposes,” the other two verbs, “obstructs” and “resists” also sweep in 17 protected speech. The term “obstruct” is “broad.” Marinello v. United States, 584
 18 U.S. 1, 7 (2018). It can mean “[t]o block or stop up; to close up or close off,” “[t]o 19 make difficult or impossible; to keep from happening; hinder” or “[t]o cut off a line
 20 of vision; to shut out.” Obstruct, Black’s Law Dictionary (12th ed. 2024). The term 21 “resist” means “stop or hinder (a moving body); “to obstruct the passage of, to 22 block,” “to impede,” “to strive against, fight or act in opposition to, oppose,” “to 23 contrive not to yield to; to withstand, be unaffected by the action or influence of.”
 24 Resist, Oxford English Dictionary (revised ed. 2010).

25 The ambit of these two terms particularly sweeps in protected expressive
 26 actions, such as picketing, sit-ins, or protest. But such actions are no less protected 27 under the First Amendment. Protest and picketing, particularly in public forums, are

1 “pristine and classic” forms of protected speech. Edwards v. South Carolina, 372
2 U.S. 229, 235–36 (1963); see also, Police Dep’t of City of Chicago v. Mosley, 408
3 U.S. 92, 99 (1972) (“[P]icketing plainly involves expressive conduct within the 4 protection of the First Amendment[.]”); Snyder v. Phelps, 562 U.S. 443, 456 (2011)
5 (emphasizing that public forums, like parks and sidewalks, “occup[y] a special
6 position in terms of First Amendment protection.”) (quoting United States v. Grace,
7 461 U.S. 171, 180 (1983)). In the government’s view, however, Mr. Huerta’s brief
8 sit-in and picketing activities, as well as protesting in front of the front gate, 9 constitute obstruction and resistance of the execution of the search warrant.

10 It is important to note that obstruction and resistance still include protected
11 verbal speech as well. Courts have found arrests unconstitutional under statutes 12 prohibiting obstruction and resistance when the underlying crime was simply verbal
13 speech. See Wilson v. Kittoe, 229 F. Supp. 2d 520, 530 (W.D. Va. 2002), aff’d, 337
14 F.3d 392 (4th Cir. 2003) (finding arrest unconstitutional where, under a Virginia law 15 prohibiting “obstruct[ion]” of police officers, an attorney was arrested after he 16 “attempted to inquire into the well-being of his neighbor’s son and wished to offer
17 his services in support” and “peacefully attempted to remind the officer of the boy’s
18 constitutional rights.”); Hoyland v. McMenemy, 869 F.3d 644, 652 (8th Cir. 2017)
19 (finding possible First Amendment retaliation where officers arrested individual 20 after he yelled profanities at the police, under Minnesota statute prohibiting 21 “intentionally ... obstruct[ing], resist[ing], or interfer[ing] with a peace officer while 22 the officer is engaged in the performance of official duties.”); Carter v. State, 222
23 Ga.App. 397, 397–98 (1996) (concluding that defendant’s “loud, unruly statements 24 and using profane language” while being questioned by police may constitute 25 misdemeanor obstruction under state law); Brooks v. N. Carolina Dep’t of 26 Correction, 984 F. Supp. 940, 955 (E.D.N.C. 1997) (finding a North Carolina statute 27 that criminalizes “resist[ing], delay[ing], or obstruct[ing] a public officer” was 28

1 facially overbroad, as it “punishes speech directed at a police officer unless 2 conveyed in an ‘orderly and peaceable manner.’”).

3 The overbreadth of the first sentence becomes apparent when contrasted with 4 the second sentence’s prohibited conduct—which separately criminalizes
5 “assault[ing], beat[ing], or wound[ing]” federal officers serving or executing writs
6 or process. The term “assaults,” specifically, includes true threats and fighting
7 words, which are not protected by the First Amendment. See United States v.
8 Sommerstedt, 752 F.2d 1494, 1496 (9th Cir. 1985), as amended, 760 F.2d 999 (9th 9 Cir. 1985) (defining assault in the context of Section 1501 as “either a willful attempt 10 to inflict injury upon the person of another, or by a threat to inflict injury upon the 11 person of another which, when coupled with an apparent present ability, causes a 12 reasonable apprehension of immediate bodily harm.”). The second sentence also 13 covers physical obstruction or resistance against an officer, as well as any battery or 14 action that results in physical harm to an officer. The scope of this sentence therefore 15 covers the majority of the unprotected speech or conduct that could otherwise be 16 read into the first sentence—but does so with a lesser scienter requirement. It
17 demonstrates not only that Congress could have written the statute to only cover 18 unprotected speech and conduct, but that it actually separated out the majority of this 19 conduct into the second sentence. The true scope of the first sentence’s prohibitions 20 accordingly covers only the minimal amounts of unprotected speech or non-21 expressive conduct that exists outside of the second sentence’s ambit. It certainly 22 does not cover force or physical violence. See, e.g., Miller v. United States, 230 F.2d 23 486, 488 (5th Cir. 1956) (Section 1501 “reflects a purpose to forbid, under the 24 broader terms of the first [sentence], those acts which constitute obstruction, 25 resistance or opposition but which do not involve physical violence.”); United States
26 v. McDonald, 26 Fed.Cas. 1074, 1077 (C.C.E.D. Wis. 1879) (jury charge) (Section 27 1501 “includes also willful acts of obstruction or opposition; and to obstruct is to 28

1 interpose obstacles or impediments, to hinder, impede or in any manner interrupt or 2 prevent, and this term does not necessarily imply the employment of direct force”).

3       The remaining components of the first sentence—its scienter requirement and 4 its object, a federal officer executing or serving a warrant—create additional 5 unconstitutional breadth. First, the scienter requirement of the statute transforms its 6 restrictions on obstruction and resistance into content-based restrictions on speech,
7 like opposition. That an individual must act knowingly and willfully means that the 8 intent and purpose of the criminalized activity must be to obstruct, oppose, or resist
9 a federal officer’s activities. While this somewhat limits the protected speech within 10 the statute’s scope, it limits that speech by content, and statutes that prohibit speech 11 “because of the topic discussed or the idea or message expressed” are 12 “presumptively unconstitutional.” Reed v. Town of Gilbert, 576 U.S. 155, 163
13 (2015). Both “oppose” and “resist” require a defendant’s activities to be in some 14 way hostile or antagonistic to the law enforcement officer’s actions. Applying the 15 canon of noscitur a sociis, which instructs that “the meaning of questionable or 16 doubtful words or phrases in a statute may be ascertained by reference to the 17 meaning of other words or phrases associated with it,” United States v. Bonds, 784
18 F.3d 582, 593 (9th Cir. 2015), the term “obstruct” takes on those same connotations.
19 The statute therefore criminalizes intentional opposition to federal law enforcement
20 but does not restrict similarly disruptive intentional support of their actions. If Mr.
21 Huerta stood in front of the Ambiance gate cheering for the federal agents, for 22 example, this activity would not fall within the statute’s ambit. For this reason, the 23 core activities prohibited by the first sentence—intentional obstruction, resistance, 24 and opposition to law enforcement activities—only criminalize speech taking a 25 position against law enforcement.

26       This targeted, content-based restriction is particularly susceptible to abuse 27 because the same law enforcement agents standing in opposition to speakers are also

1 the ones interpreting the scope of the statute and making arrests. Agent Ribner told 2 Mr. Huerta that he was “going to jail” long before his actual arrest, solely on the 3 basis that he was one of the loudest, most active protesters. Officer Crook singled 4 him out for force and arrest despite numerous other protesters actually blocking the 5 van. Both officers had been on the receiving end of Mr. Huerta’s heckling, 6 challenges, and gestures, and their anger at his speech led to retaliatory targeting.
7 Agent Ribner even characterized Mr. Huerta and other protesters as “vicious,
8 horrible people,” and federal agents have even expressly admitted to similar biases
9 in other cases regarding anti-immigration protests. See Chicago Headline Club,
10 2025 WL 3240782, at *79 (Federal agent defendants “admit that they would treat
11 pro-ICE and CBP demonstrators more favorably”).

12 Second, object of the sentence provides no meaningful narrowing of the 13 criminalized activity. The inclusion of an object, such as “any officer,” certainly 14 implies some level of focus of the speech or activities on one or more officers
15 conducting the specified activities. But, as discussed below in Argument Section 16 III, this “limitation,” particularly in the government’s interpretation of the statute, is 17 entirely vague and provides no real temporal or spatial guidance. It simply provides 18 the content or recipient of the protected speech—law enforcement serving or 19 executing a warrant. For example, preemptive media reporting on a high-profile 20 arrest could oppose or obstruct the execution of the warrant—no proximity to the 21 warrant location required. And the mere fact that such opposition, obstruction, or 22 resistance targets an officer who is executing a search or arrest pursuant to a warrant 23 should not provide speech any less protection than it would receive in the context of 24 any other type of police action, like conducting a warrantless search or arrest.

25 There is no question that, under its plainly legitimate scope, the first sentence
26 has legitimate prohibitions. The First Amendment does not protect, for example, 27 shredding files, locking a process server in a coat closet, or running away from an 28

1 arresting officer. But law may be facially overbroad under the First Amendment
 2 “even though it has lawful applications.” Tucson v. City of Seattle, 91 F.4th 1318,
 3 1327 (9th Cir. 2024). In choosing the terminology of the statute, “Congress said
 4 what it meant and meant what it said.” United States v. Rundo, 990 F.3d 709, 718
 5 (9th Cir. 2021). By using broad terms like oppose, obstruct, and resist, and 6 separating them from the second sentence, Congress included and criminalized a 7 substantial swath of protected speech, along with any legitimate applications. And,
 8 as demonstrated by case law and Mr. Huerta’s own charged offense, its application
 9 to protected speech is not confined to hypotheticals. For this reason, the first 10 sentence is overbroad and subject to severance from Section 1501.

11 B. No Limiting Construction Remedies the First Paragraph’s
 12 Overbreadth.

13 Striking the first sentence, rather than imposing a limiting construction, is the 14 appropriate remedy for its overbreadth. The remaining second sentence of the 15 statute covers the majority of unprotected speech and conduct that this Court would 16 otherwise “save” by imposing a limiting construction. To attempt to “save” this 17 overbroad sentence would be for a court to literally rewrite it, providing definitions
 18 and applications not included in the law Congress enacted.

19 Courts are required to construe a statute to preserve its constitutionality but 20 cannot do so atextually. In applying a limiting construction, courts have applied 21 several canons of statutory construction to narrow the terms in this statute to 22 unprotected activities. One method applies the canon of noscitur a sociis where the 23 string of verbs includes necessarily unprotected activities, such as beating or 24 wounding. See People v. Vasquez, 465 Mich. 83, 111–12 (2001) (finding that the 25 inclusion of the term “obstruct” as part of a list containing “resist, oppose, assault, 26 beat [and] wound” supports “restricting the first three terms in the list to behavior 27 involving actual or threatened physical harm or physical interference.”). But where 28

1 these words are accompanied by less clearly physical verbs, such as “hinder” or 2 “impede,” courts have found that the three verbs in Section 1501’s first sentence
3 cannot be not so limited. See King v. Ambs, 519 F.3d 607, 611 (6th Cir. 2008)
4 (including “obstruct[ ]” with “resist[ ], impede[ ], hinder[ ] or oppose[ ], presents “a 5 less apparently physical context in which to interpret the term.”). Since the first 6 sentence’s verbs are separated from the second sentence’s unprotected activities, 7 noscitur a sociis does not support a limitation to non-expressive conduct.

8 For similar reasons, the first sentence cannot be limited to unprotected verbal
9 speech, such as fighting words or true threats. As noted in Argument Section II.A,
10 the second sentence of Section 1501 already encompasses such unprotected speech
11 into the word “assaults.” Limiting the first sentence to apply to this same speech 12 would render it superfluous.

13 In addition, courts have looked to modifiers within a statute’s text to limit the 14 application of these verbs, such as the term “forcibly.” For example, 18 U.S.C. § 111
15 criminalizes anyone who “forcibly assaults, resists, opposes, impedes, intimidates, 16 or interferes” with federal officers completing official duties. In determining that 17 Section 111 is not overbroad, courts have relied on the modifier “forcibly,” which 18 ensures that the statute does “not restrict protected speech in the form of purely 19 verbal, non-threatening opposition.” United States v. Reyes-Lopez, 141 F. App’x 20 533, 533 (9th Cir. 2005); United States v. Contreras, 2025 WL 2858034, at *5 (W.D.
21 Tex. Sept. 18, 2025) (finding that, in an as-applied challenge to Section 111, the jury 22 could find that the defendant’s activity was “forceful, and, thus, unprotected under 23 the First Amendment.”). Section 1501’s first sentence is often compared to Section
24 111, and courts have concluded that the lack of a similar modifier in Section 1501
25 ensures that no force is actually required. United States v. Giampino, 680 F.2d 898,
26 902 (2d Cir. 1982) (in Section 1501, “[t]here is no mention of force, nor use of a 27 verb that connotes the use of force, nor any logical reason why such obstruction, 28

1 resistance, or opposition cannot occur without force.”); United States v. Moore, 958
 2 F.2d 646, 650 (5th Cir. 1992) (“The only factual element required for a § 111
 3 violation that is not included within a § 1501 violation is the threat or use of force.”);
 4 United States v. Gonzalez, 122 F.3d 1383, 1388 (11th Cir. 1997) (“[T]he element of 5 force was required for a conviction under section 111 but not for conviction under 6 section 1501.”).

7 The plain language and application of first sentence criminalize substantial 8 protected First Amendment activities, and its language and context eliminate any 9 possibility of a limiting construction. This Court should strike this first sentence
 10 from Section 1501 and dismiss the Information.

11 III. Section 1501 is Unconstitutionally Vague in Violation of the First 12 Amendment and the Due Process Clause.

13 If this Court finds that Section 1501 is not facially overbroad, then as applied
 14 to Mr. Huerta, it is unconstitutionally vague under the First and Fifth Amendments.
 15 A statute is void for vagueness where it “(1) fails to give a person of ordinary 16 intelligence a reasonable opportunity to know what is prohibited; (2) impermissibly 17 delegates basic policy matters to policemen, judges, and juries for resolution on an 18 ad hoc and subjective basis, with the attendant dangers of arbitrary and 19 discriminatory application; or (3) abuts upon sensitive areas of basic First 20 Amendment freedoms, operating to inhibit the exercise of those freedoms.” Hunt v.
 21 City of Los Angeles, 638 F.3d 703, 712 (9th Cir. 2011) (cleaned up). Where “the 22 law interferes with the right of free speech . . . a more stringent vagueness test should 23 apply.” Vill. of Hoffman Ests. v. Flipside, 455 U.S. 489, 499 (1982).

24 Mr. Huerta’s charged “course of conduct” is based entirely on activities
 25 protected by the First Amendment. In the time period set forth in the government’s 26 interpretation of the information, Mr. Huerta protested and criticized law
 27 enforcement activity, and the government considers his protected First Amendment
 28

1 actions to be criminal activity under this statute. Mr. Huerta protested on a public
2 sidewalk, outside of one entrance of a location being searched under a warrant. But 3 Section 1501 provided him with no notice of when his protected speech became 4 criminal. The first sentence's failure to provide any indication or differentiation
5 between speech protected by the First Amendment and non-expressive activities that 6 could otherwise be prohibited ensures that no individual can have proper notice of 7 when their actions cross a line from constitutional to criminal under this statute and 8 renders it unconstitutionally vague.

9 The government's interpretation here demonstrates its susceptibility to 10 misinterpretation. According to the Arrest Investigation Report, Agent Ribner "has 11 knowledge from incidents and at least one investigation that there have been past 12 criminal activities with a few activist groups." Ex. B at 6. Examples of this 13 "criminal activity," as written in the report, include:

- 14 • "[W]orking in a concerted effort to provide training videos to the public 15 on how to spot DHS law enforcement vehicles"
- 16 • "[U]tiliz[ing] two-way radios and patrol neighborhoods to identify 17 HSI/ICE operations."
- 18 • "[Y]ell[ing] and mak[ing] threatening remarks aimed at intimidating 19 agents"
- 20 • "[U]tiliz[ing] social media and verbal yelling to obtain compliance
21 from LAPD officers to leave traffic control positions during HSI search 22 warrants"
- 23 • "[A]ct[ing] as 'agent provocateurs' by using megaphones to amplify 24 emotionality within the crowd."

25 Id. at 6, 9. The government further alleges in its report that "[o]verall, the above 26 actions cause increased officer and public safety concerns and are believed to be 27 utilized in totality to thwart and impede U.S. Government policies toward

1 immigration enforcement objectives.” Id. at 6. These interpretations are 2 extraordinary in light of the Supreme Court and Ninth Circuit precedent stating the 3 exact opposite. Moreover, courts across the country have noted the “troubling trend”
4 of federal agents “equating protests with riots and a lack of appreciation for the wide
5 spectrum that exists between citizens who are observing, questioning, and criticizing 6 their government, and those who are obstructing, assaulting, or doing violence.”
7 Trump, 2025 WL 2886645, at *5. This general confusion leads to arrests and charges
8 for obstruction that conflict with protected First Amendment rights.

9       The sphere of the statute’s temporal and geographic coverage is similarly 10 vague, as it provides no notice to Mr. Huerta on how close his activities must be to 11 the officer executing or serving the writ or process. As described in Argument
12 Section II, the statute requires neither touching nor force. Mr. Huerta certainly did 13 not touch (or even have any physical contact with) an officer during his “course of 14 conduct”—that is, until he was pushed over by Officer Crook. And Mr. Huerta had 15 no notice under the statute that the public sidewalk could fall within the area that this 16 statute applies. If he had, for example, protested across the street from the gate, 17 would that still have constituted unlawful opposition? Was it his mere proximity to 18 a government van—with no relationship to the search warrant—that rendered his 19 speech a criminal act? Did he himself need to be standing in front of the van, or was 20 his presence at the protest enough to aid and abet other protesters’ conduct? The 21 fact that these questions remain unanswered by the statute ensures that individuals 22 do not know where, when, or how they can exercise their constitutional rights to 23 protest police activities before someone alleges their conduct is criminal.

24       But the most substantial risk of Section 1501’s vagueness is the fact that, due 25 to its subject matter, it “poses heightened risks of arbitrary enforcement.” Butcher
26 v. Knudsen, 38 F.4th 1163, 1169 (9th Cir. 2022). Law enforcement officers have a 27 greater likelihood of arresting individuals under Section 1501’s first sentence as they 28

1 themselves are the targets of its prohibited activities. But “while police, no less than 2 anyone else, may resent having obscene words and gestures directed at them, they 3 may not exercise the awesome power at their disposal to punish individuals for 4 conduct that is not merely lawful, but protected by the First Amendment.” Duran, 5 904 F.2d at 1378.

6 There is no better demonstration of this abuse than Officer Crook and Agent
7 Ribner’s targeted arrest of Mr. Huerta and the subject matter of his speech. The 8 evidence in this case shows that, in the events leading up to Mr. Huerta’s arrest, 9 federal agents engaged in a coordinated, deliberate course of conduct designed to 10 suppress and silence Mr. Huerta and other anti-ICE protesters. DHS’s reports on 11 this case indicate that the presence of allegedly violent protesters at other 12 immigration enforcement events led them to anticipate that such violence would 13 occur at Ambiance as well. Ex. B at 6. However, June 6, 2025, marked the first day 14 in the federal government’s escalated approach to immigration enforcement in Los 15 Angeles.<sup>7</sup> At that point, no significant protest activity had occurred in the city in 16 response to immigration raids, and although the protests had occurred in other cities, 17 federal agents had no reason to assume that a protest at Ambiance would lead to 18 violence. Before a single protester arrived at Ambiance, and with no specific 19 intelligence of plans for violent actions, the government assigned a federal agent to 20 go undercover and conduct surveillance of the anticipated protest—an agent who 21 deliberately mislead protesters into going to an incorrect location and filmed 22 protesters to gather their identities. Another agent took pictures of protesters from a 23

---

24
25 <sup>7</sup> Bill Hutchinson, LA protests timeline: How ICE raids sparked demonstrations and 26 Trump to send in the military, ABC News (June 11, 2025),
27 https://abcnews.go.com/US/timeline-ice-raids-sparked-la-protests-prompted-
28 trump/story?id=122688437.

1 window inside Ambiance.<sup>8</sup> The government would not have taken such steps for a 2 neighborhood barbeque popping up in the front entrance.

3 Mr. Huerta was a specific target for Agent Ribner and Officer Crook, despite 4 the fact that he stood as one of a crowd protesting their actions. He had targeted his 5 speech directly at them, standing on the other side of the locked gate, specifically 6 criticized and argued with them about their activities, leading to visible frustration.
7 Based solely on Mr. Huerta's words, Agent Ribner repeatedly threatened him with 8 arrest while he was simply exercising his right to protest, and even specifically
9 identified Mr. Huerta to other federal agents as a potential violent protester, with no 10 other basis than his strong, protected speech. See Ex. B at 9–10. The moment the 11 gate opened for the transport van, Agent Ribner and Officer Crook rushed past at 12 least three protesters actually standing in front of the van to confront Mr. Huerta, 13 who stood to its side, and conducted a particularly (and unconstitutionally) brutal 14 arrest.

15 The arrest and charge against Mr. Huerta showcase how the government 16 understands Section 1501's prohibition on obstruction, resistance, and opposition to 17 agents effectuating a search warrant, to be a justification for pre-emptively targeting 18 and silencing anti-law enforcement speech, and a vehicle for retribution against 19 those whose speech they do not like. This is the exact type of vague statute that the 20 First and Fifth Amendments seek to protect against.

---

21
22
23 <sup>8</sup> Of course, law enforcement is entitled to take measures to protect itself. And in 24 DHS investigation reports, Agent Ribner and others cite examples of other anti-ICE
25 protests where law enforcement experienced actual violence. See generally, Ex. B.
26 But "[t]he many peaceful protesters, journalists, and members of the general public 27 cannot be punished for the violent acts of others."). Index Newspapers LLC v. United 28 States Marshals Service, 977 F.3d 817, 834 (9th Cir. 2020).

1           IV. The Information Results From the Government’s Retaliatory and 2           Brutal Arrest of Mr. Huerta, in Violation of his First and Fourth
 3           Amendment Rights.

4           A court may exercise its supervisory powers to dismiss an indictment “for 5 three reasons: to remedy a constitutional or statutory violation; to protect judicial 6 integrity by ensuring that a conviction rests on appropriate considerations validly
 7 before a jury; or to deter future illegal conduct.” United States v. Barrera-Moreno, 8 951 F.2d 1089, 1091 (9th Cir. 1991). All three are applicable here.

9           The government’s pre-meditated, brutal arrest of Mr. Huerta violated his First 10 and Fourth Amendment rights, and the trumped-up charge against him rest entirely 11 on protected First Amendment speech. Mr. Huerta has no redress for these 12 violations outside of dismissal of the Information, as civil suits against federal agents
 13 for constitutional violations have been essentially eliminated. Without this Court’s 14 action here, the federal officers that committed these violations will continue to do 15 so undeterred.

16           A. Mr. Huerta was Arrested in Retaliation for His Protected
 17           Speech.

18           Law enforcement “action designed to retaliate against and chill political 19 expression strikes at the heart of the First Amendment.” Gibson v. United States, 20 781 F.2d 1334, 1338 (9th Cir.1986), cert. denied, 479 U.S. 1054 (1987). Such acts
 21 can range from arrests to unusually aggressive uses of force to surveillance. While 22 law enforcement can take general measures to ensure their safety against violence, 23 it is well-established that “the proper response to potential and actual violence is . . .
 24 to arrest those who actually engage in such conduct, rather than to suppress 25 legitimate First Amendment conduct as a prophylactic measure.” Collins, 110 F.3d 26 at 1373 (internal citations omitted). And “[d]iscrete acts of police surveillance and 27
 28

1 intimidation directed solely at silencing” protesters are prohibited. Gibson, 781 F.2d
2 at 1338.

3 To prove retaliation, a defendant must show (1) “he engaged in 4 constitutionally protected activity,” (2) “as a result, he was subjected to adverse 5 action by the defendant that would chill a person of ordinary firmness from 6 continuing to engage in the protected activity,” and (3) “there was a substantial 7 causal relationship between the constitutionally protected activity and the adverse 8 action.” Ballentine v. Tucker, 28 F.4th 54, 61 (9th Cir. 2022).

9 As set out in Argument Sections II and III, Mr. Huerta engaged in First 10 Amendment-protected speech during the entire “course of conduct” he is charged 11 under. Mr. Huerta questioned, heckled, and chanted at law enforcement, and 12 interacted with Officer Crook and Agent Ribner in particular. He spoke and 13 criticized matters of critical public importance while standing in a public forum. See 14 Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 138, 145 (1983) (“[S]peech on public issues occupies 15 the ‘highest rung of the hierarchy of First Amendment values,’ and is entitled to 16 special protection.”) (quoting Claiborne Hardware Co., 458 U.S. at 913 (internal 17 quotations and citation omitted)).

18 The pre-meditated targeting of anti-ICE protests, the pre-emptive surveillance 19 of individual protesters, like Mr. Huerta, and the targeted arrest and harassment of 20 Mr. Huerta (threatening him with “arrest” immediately once he harangued the 21 agents) constitute adverse actions. When Mr. Huerta and other protesters arrived, 22 stood and protested, Officer Crook took out his phone and walked back and forth in 23 front of the gate, overtly filming his and other protesters’ faces—a clear attempt to 24 intimidate and silence their activities. See Ex. Q. While Mr. Huerta criticized the 25 agents and participated in the sit-in in front of the gate, Agent Ribner repeatedly 26 threatened him with arrest. On that basis alone, Agent Ribner assumed that Mr.
27 Huerta would engage in violence, and reported this assumption to other agents,

1 solely based on his protected activities. And Officer Crook and Agent Ribner made
2 a beeline for Mr. Huerta the moment they could exercise their “awesome power” to 3 manufacture an excuse for arrest. And it is particularly notable that, despite 4 substantial evidence of other protesters standing directly in front of the van, only Mr.
5 Huerta was charged.

6 The brutality of Mr. Huerta’s arrest is an additional adverse action against 7 him. The moment the gate opened for the white van, Agent Ribner and Officer
8 Crook rushed past at least three protesters actually standing in front of the van to 9 confront Mr. Huerta, who stood to its side. Without taking a breath, Officer Crook 10 shoved Mr. Huerta, and then when Mr. Huerta regained his feet, shoved him to the 11 ground. Agent Ribner took over and essentially tackled Mr. Huerta—who was 12 already on the ground—to begin effectuating his arrest. Mr. Huerta was flipped onto 13 all fours, held down by his neck, and flipped again onto his stomach, with Agent
14 Ribner and two other agents piling on top of him, and his forehead barely hovering
15 above a concrete curb. Unable to get Mr. Huerta’s arms behind his back, Agent
16 Ribner sprayed pepper spray into his hand and rubbed it all over Mr. Huerta’s face
17 and eyes, knocking Mr. Huerta’s head into the curb. Mr. Huerta repeatedly stated 18 that he couldn’t breathe. See Ex. B at 12. Despite Mr. Huerta calmly repeating that 19 he had a bad shoulder and requesting that Agent Ribner not handcuff him behind his 20 back, Agent Ribner wrenched his arm behind his back and handcuffed him, and then 21 the other agent lifted him from the ground using his handcuffed arms. Mr. Huerta
22 can be seen screaming in pain. It is telling that the majority of other agents used no
23 force at all in their crowd control methodology. Most simply spread their arms wide 24 and the protesters around them backed away from the van. Protestors were also 25 given an instruction to move, an instruction that Agent Ribner and Officer Crook
26 failed to give Mr. Huerta before violently taking him down.

1 The causal relationship between Mr. Huerta’s speech and Agent Ribner and 2 Officer Crook’s brutality is apparent from these facts. Mr. Huerta heckled and spoke
3 to Agent Ribner and Officer Crook specifically, and they took out their anger and 4 frustration on him at the first opportunity. Their undue aggression is a strong 5 indicator that the use of force and arrest was in retaliation for the message of his 6 protest. See Anti Police-Terror Project v. City of Oakland, 477 F. Supp. 3d 1066,
7 1088 (N.D. Cal. 2020) (“[S]ome of the aggressive conduct described in the 8 declarations, such as shooting a reporter with a rubber bullet even though it does not 9 appear she was engaged in illegal activity or posed a threat of any kind, raises a 10 serious question as to whether some of the uses of force described in those 11 declarations was in reaction to the anti-police message of the protests and aimed at 12 intimidating protesters to deter such speech.”); see also, NAACP of San Jose/Silicon
13 Valley v. City of San Jose, 562 F. Supp. 3d 382, 399–400 (N.D. Cal. 2021) (“[G]iven 14 that the protestors were specifically protesting police misconduct, it is reasonable to 15 allege that the protestors’ viewpoint was a substantial or motivating cause – even if 16 not necessarily the sole cause – behind the [officers’ uses of force]).

17 Agent Ribner, and his superiors at DHS, have a documented history of disdain 18 towards protesters. For example, in his interview, “Ribner stated HUERTA and 19 other protesters are “vicious, horrible people.” In addition, in Los Angeles Press
20 Club, when the court granted a preliminary injunction against the excessive and 21 retaliatory force used by law enforcement during the Los Angeles anti-ICE protests
22 in summer 2025, the court found that the evidence “suggests that [Defense Secretary
23 Kristy] Noem ratified [law enforcement’s] practice of meeting First Amendment
24 protected activities with force.” 799 F. Supp. 3d at 1067.<sup>9</sup>

---

25
26 <sup>9</sup> Citing “Train Wreck Mayor”: Kristi Noem Slams LA Official (June 10, 2025), Fox
27 News, <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ymYIXrH9pjpg> (“The more that they
28 protest and commit acts of violence against law enforcement officers, the harder ICE

1 The photos, videos and interview statements make clear that, if not for Mr.
 2 Huerta's anti-ICE messaging and his criticism directed at Agent Ribner and Officer
 3 Crook, he would not have been the target of such brutality. For this reason, Agent
 4 Ribner and Officer Crook's aggressive and unconstitutional uses of force violated
 5 Mr. Huerta's First Amendment rights.

6 B. In Effectuating Mr. Huerta's Arrest, the Government Used
 7 Unreasonable Excessive Force, in Violation of the Fourth
 8 Amendment.

9 Agent Ribner's and Officer Crook's uses of force were also unconstitutionally
 10 excessive. "An excessive force claim is a claim that a law enforcement officer 11 carried out an unreasonable seizure through a use of force that was not justified under 12 the relevant circumstances." Cnty. of Los Angeles, Calif. v. Mendez, 581 U.S. 420, 13 428 (2017). In determining whether unconstitutional excessive force has occurred, 14 courts look to the totality of the circumstances and weigh a number of factors, 15 "including [1] the severity of the crime at issue, [2] whether the suspect poses an 16 immediate threat to the safety of the officers or others, and [3] whether he is actively 17

---

18 is going to come after them ..."); Kristi Noem Claims Videotaping ICE Agents Is 19 'Violence' Following Camarillo, California Farm Raids, Forbes (July 12, 2025), 20 <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uDFX4q6huH8> ("[V]iolence is anything that 21 threatens [ICE agents] and their safety, so it is ... videotaping them, where they're at, 22 when they're out on operations."); Declaration of Ryan Shapiro ¶ 3, Ex. A at 3 [Dkt.
 23 34-19] ("One of the most common methods of threatening [Law Enforcement
 24 Officers] comes from online doxing ... Other tactics include ... livestreaming [Law 25 Enforcement Officer] interactions ..."). In addition, in the recent assault trial under 26 18 USC §111 of Mr. Brito Ramos in the Central District of California, U.S. Border
 27 Patrol Sector Chief Gregory Bovino was questioned about his past comments calling 28 undocumented immigrants "scum." Brittny Mejia & James Queally, Protester found not guilty of assault despite top Border Patrol official's testimony, L.A. Times (Sept.
 17, 2025), <https://www.latimes.com/california/story/2025-09-17/immigration-protest-case-trial-los-angeles>.

1 resisting arrest or attempting to evade arrest by flight.” Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S.
2 386, 396 (1989). “The most important factor is whether the suspect posed an
3 immediate threat.” Fortson v. City of Los Angeles, 628 F. Supp. 3d 976, 988 (C.D.
4 Cal. 2022). Pushing an unarmed, nonviolent, non-fleeing, nearly 60-year-old 5 alleged misdemeanant to the ground, tackling him, having agents piling on and 6 throwing him around, rubbing pepper spray into his eyes, and then handcuffing him
7 behind his back despite a known shoulder injury, constitutes excessive force.

8 At the time of his arrest, Mr. Huerta was not pushing, assaulting, contacting 9 or doing anything violent to an officer, and the charge against him is a misdemeanor.
10 Obstruction crimes are generally considered “far from severe.” Gravelet-Blondin v.
11 Shelton, 728 F.3d 1086, 1091 (9th Cir. 2013); Carr v. Cnty. of San Diego, 2021 WL
12 4244596, at *14 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 17, 2021) (collecting cases). In Headwaters II, the 13 Ninth Circuit held “that police officers employ excessive force in violation of the 14 Fourth Amendment when they use pepper spray upon an individual who is engaged 15 in the commission of a non-violent misdemeanor and who is disobeying a police 16 officer’s order but otherwise poses no threat to the officer or others.” Young v. Cnty.
17 of Los Angeles, 655 F.3d 1156, 1168 (9th Cir. 2011) (summarizing Headwaters
18 Forest Def. v. Cnty. of Humboldt, 276 F.3d 1125, 1130 (9th Cir. 2002), as amended 19 (Jan. 30, 2002)). Mr. Huerta also was entirely under the officers’ control when 20 Agent Ribner deployed pepper spray—in fact, he was essentially at the bottom of a 21 dog pile. See Headwaters II, 276 F.3d at 1130 (“Where officers had control over the 22 protestors it would have been clear to any reasonable officer that it was unnecessary
23 to use pepper spray to bring them under control.”). And despite the fact that Mr.
24 Huerta informed him of his shoulder injury, Agent Ribner still handcuffed him
25 behind his back, causing visible, immeasurable pain. See Palmer v. Sanderson, 9
26 F.3d 1433, 1434–35 (9th Cir. 1993) (finding excessive force claim where officer 27 allegedly pulled a 67-year-old man with mobility issues out of a car, “handcuffed 28

1 him, and pushed him into the back seat of the patrol car with such force that Palmer
2 fell over sideways . . . . [and] refused his request to loosen them.”); Blankenhorn v.
3 City of Orange, 485 F.3d 463, 478–79 (9th Cir. 2007) (holding officers used 4 excessive force when they “gang-tackled” a suspect who had committed 5 misdemeanor trespass and the suspect neither posed an immediate threat nor 6 attempted to flee).

7 On balance, the government’s interest in effectuating any force against Mr.
8 Huerta was negligible at best, and yet they arrested him with unquestionable
9 brutality. This violated his Fourth Amendment right to be free of excessive force.

10 C. Dismissal Provides the Only Remedy for These Violations.

11 This Court should dismiss the Information using its supervisory powers. In 12 arresting and charging Mr. Huerta, the government violated his First and Fourth 13 Amendment rights. The charge against him stem entirely from the exercise of his 14 First Amendment right to criticize and protest government actions—and the 15 government’s unclear charge against him may even include Mr. Huerta’s actions
16 during his arrest. None of his First Amendment-protected activities can be validly
17 placed before a jury. Finally, no adequate mechanism exists to deter federal agents 18 from continuing to commit these constitutional violations in the future. After the 19 Supreme Court decided Egbert v. Boule, 596 U.S. 482, 498 (2022), the opportunity 20 for redress for victims of such retaliatory excessive force under Bivens v. Six
21 Unknown Fed. Narcotics Agents, 403 U.S. 388, 91 (1971), is slim to none. See
22 Goldey v. Fields, 606 U.S. 942, 942 (2025) (emphasizing that the Supreme Court 23 has not implied any new constitutional cause of action under Bivens since 1980 and 24 instructing courts should not do so “in all but the most unusual circumstances”). For 25 this reason, “suppression of the evidence and dismissal of the indictment are the only 26 relief available . . . [and] the only adequate deterrent for the officers’ conduct.”
27 United States v. Quintanilla-Chavez, 2025 WL 2982191, at *18 (W.D. Tex. Oct. 20,

1 2025) (“[D]ismiss[ing] the indictment based on the constitutionally excessive force
2 deployed during the Defendant’s arrest” in part due to the need for deterrence).
3 Suppression of evidence would provide no remedy, as the evidence against Mr.
4 Huerta was not gathered as a result of his unconstitutional arrest. In light of the lack 5 of a valid charge against him, and the clear constitutional violations by the arresting
6 officers, the Information should be dismissed.

7 CONCLUSION

8 For the foregoing reasons, Mr. Huerta respectfully requests that this Court
9 strike the first sentence of Section 1501 as unconstitutionally overbroad and dismiss 10 with prejudice Mr. Huerta’s charge that arises from this unconstitutional statute. In 11 the alternative, this Court should find that, as applied to Mr. Huerta, Section 1501 is 12 unconstitutionally vague, in violation of the First and Fifth Amendments, and 13 dismiss the Information with prejudice. Finally, as a separate and independent 14 reason for dismissing the Information, this Court should exercise its supervisory
15 powers to dismiss with prejudice, as the Information arises out of a retaliatory arrest
16 using excessive force, in violation of Mr. Huerta’s First and Fourth Amendment
17 rights. As no adequate deterrence mechanisms exist for similar future violations, 18 and as Mr. Huerta has no other avenues of redress, dismissal with prejudice is 19 appropriate.

20 A Proposed Order is attached to this motion.

21
22 Dated: January 6, 2026

Respectfully submitted,

23 LOWELL & ASSOCIATES, PLLC

24
25 By: /s/ Abbe David Lowell
26 Abbe David Lowell

27 MCLANE, BEDNARSKI & LITT, LLP

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

By: /s/ Marilyn E. Bednarski
Marilyn E. Bednarski

Attorneys for Defendant David Huerta

CERTIFICATE OF COMPLIANCE

The undersigned, counsel of record for Mr. Huerta, certifies that this brief contains 37 pages, totaling 11,300 words, which complies with the page limit set by the Court's Order, dated January 6, 2026. ECF 54.

Dated: January 6, 2026

/s/ Abbe David Lowell

Abbe David Lowell