It is important we stand together and support organizations like @WomenAgnstAbuse. Don't let anyone take your voice away from you. It took me a long time to find mine, but now that I have it, I'm never letting go.

I have a lot to say, but it has taken me a long time to get to this point where I can say anything. In the next couple of weeks I'm going to be providing evidence of some heinous actions so I can help other women get help. Thanks for understanding how difficult it is to talk up.

There are resources such as @AbuseResources in CA if you are struggling. It's important that we stick together and defend survivors @defendsurvivors. You aren't alone.

The attempt to silence this account failed. I should perhaps suggest looking inward. Deep inward. Down to the place where you are clearly trying to hide the fact that Christian's behavior was a known quantity for quite some time.

Do you know how many others he abused?

The work people like @IAMannalynnemcc does is important to bring to light the problem of human trafficking in modern society. No form of slavery is okay. Giving women a piece of paper and saying it's a legal contract does not make it okay Christian! #endslavery #endsexslavery

Not Christian Lanng @_ChristianLanng · Oct 11, 2023

While it might look like progress, it's just a company trying to pretend they were good stewards. Investors knew. The board KNEW. How many other women dealt with his sexual harassment and sex slave contracts?

We will come forward one by one.

Why do survivors of sexual and domestic abuse have PTSD and symptoms like those that have been in battle, terrorized, and tortured? Because they have been in a battle and terrorized and tortured.

There was a period of time where I prepared for my death during my assault. My brain played tricks on my mind, as if it were able to anticipate the feeling of a knife slicing through my stomach. I finally jumped out of a moving vehicle and escaped.

I went to war. And it might

So when is the follow up piece on Christian to ask about his abuse contracts? Don't forget to reach out to the investors and board who knew what he was doing well before the IPO.

I would rather not. For my safety, I already had to deal with one take down attempt and don't know the extent of what they might try next. If you have information or questions, you can pass it to my lawyers at Freedman Taitelman.

Wow! What a joke it is for them to pretend to just now be responding to something they knew was happening for YEARS and tried to keep quiet. I don't want to sound like a bitch here, but this is the lamest and laziest cover up ever. Liars.

Good. Criminals should go to prison, kind of like the board of Tradeshift for knowingly covering up sex crimes.
