I don't think they're worth a fraction of that now. Customers are leaving in droves. People are waking up to their bad behavior since 2018. It's a distressed asset.

FWIW, I researched my options and had decided that I wanted to use @wpengine before you started attacking them.
The reason I can't use them now is because you won't stop cutting their customers' access and targeting .org updates to hurt only them. I have to protect my clients
