Product Description

The FlipBelt is a really simple but revolutionary product to go hands free. Made of machine-washable high tech Spandex-Lycra blend material with an internal pocket system accessible from four openings around the belts exterior. The four pockets lets you easily tuck in your phone, keys, gel packs, credit cards or whatever you may need for your workout. You then flip the belt inside out and everything gets locked in place. Because there are no clasps or buttons, you simply pull the belt on like a pair of pants and wear it wherever it feels most comfortable.

Wave goodbye to Armbands and Fanny Packs

Introducing the FlipBelt!

An active lifestyle is a healthy lifestyle; that's certain. These days, however, even the healthiest people are weighed down—and not by those few extra pounds you're trying to lose or those growing muscles, but by all the things they 'must' have with them: keys, phones, wallets, credit cards, ID cards, headphones. Most people use a variety of accessories while exercising in order to keep their stuff safe, not to mention secure. The armband and fanny pack used to be the standard. Not anymore. Why choose the FlipBelt?

- Extremely comfortable and versatile
- Phones are getting too large for Armbands
- No fasterners for a chafe free experience
- Bounce free and will not ride up
- Used for travel and hidden money belt
- Insulin pump, inhalers, EpiPens, and pills
- Fashionable! Fanny packs are not!

Discover the FlipBelt Difference

Quality you can Count on

Quality control and quality materials insure that every one of our belts fits and performs perfectly, every time. FlipBelt stands by their product, thats why there's always a 100% satisfaction guarantee!

The difference is in the details! The FlipBelt features maximum stretch and recovery stitching, flat seam and piping, reinforced stitching, a 3M reflective logo, true active wear sizing, the highest quality Micropoly fabric, and double stitching.

The Patented Original

Designed and shipped from the USA. We are the original manufacturers of the tubular belt.

FlipBelt Trademark Reg. No. 4,300,574 Issue Date: 3/12/2013 Product U.S. Pat. No. US D691,795 S Issue Date: 10/22/2013.

Be aware of copy cats! Knock-off FlipBelts ship from other countries and take weeks to arrive, stretch out, bleed onto clothing, only use single stitching and they don't allow exchanges. You will not experience this type of hassle when you purchase from FlipBelt, the original tubular belt.

The most Versatile Solution

Workout armbands are often specifically made to fit a certain model of phone. While that keeps them secure, armbands often don't have enough room to fit other items, like keys or money; their sizes are also customized to fit only the newer models of phones, so finding one to fit the relatively old-school iPod Touch, Nano, or Shuffle could be difficult. And what about those regular phone upgrades? It's becoming more common to only go a year or two with the same phone—meaning you'll have to upgrade your armband, too.

Question: Does the pink belt reflect in the dark/at night?
Answer: I believe they all reflect the same regardless of color. It's just the thin silver trim on the top and bottom and the logo that reflect. It's not much so don't rely on on this alone to be seen at night.
Nonetheless, it works great. I kid you not I have left it on hours after I finish exercising forgetting I have it on… see more

Question: Does the FlipBelt fit the new iPhone 6? I do not have the iPhone 6+.
Answer: I tried 3 different sizes of the FlipBelt with my iPhone 6 + in a Mophie case. I couldn't get the phone into a Small (which fit my waist); I struggled to get it into a Medium; and also struggled to get it into a Large (which flopped around on my hips). Doesn't Bounce Around At All!

By Debi @2014 & Beyond TOP 1000 REVIEWER on March 26, 2015

Size: X-Large/35"-38" Color: Black Verified Purchase

I recently saw this product on after having searched for an iPhone running case. It wasn't exactly what I was thinking at the time, but as it turns out, it's even better! After I read more about it, I searched to see if they had their own website, which they did. I then looked around their website to see if they had opportunities to test or review their product, which they did. In exchange for providing me with a FlipBelt of my very own, I agreed to write this review for Level Terrain Apparel. Let me start out by saying that while I was provided with the complimentary FlipBelt, it has no bearing on how I feel about the product itself.

I do not possess the standard "runner look." I do not (and cannot) tuck clothes in. BIG runs in my family, it's a genetic thing (thanks Mom and Dad). I'm an "up and down" dieter/runner who sometimes – or mostly - eats more than she runs. Therefore, the very last thing in the world I would want to wear while I'm out there running events with professional photographers taking action shots would be something gathering around my waist screaming "look here, look here". Those waist packs, sport belts, athletic pouches or whatever you might call them - fanny bags – those are like swear words in my book. I would prefer to stick pins in my nice tech shirts rather than wear a simple bib holder for the mere fact that it cinches around that area.

When this FlipBelt arrived, the first thing I noticed is that it looks just like the top of my favorite yoga pants – a nice, thick 3-inch band. It's not a pouch that attaches to a belt; basically the whole thing IS a pouch. There are no zippers, buttons, buckles, nothing. You either put it over your head, or you step into it and adjust it to your waist or your hips, whichever is your preference. Read more ›

Good value

By Yoga Girl on December 28, 2015

Update I guess I bought too tight of a size because it stretched.. so I ended up switching to using the single zip pocket belt from Nuclear as you can completely adjust it... Nuclear Strength Running and Fitness Workout Belt (Black)

1. I ordered this and received it within the week (under 5 days), which I thought was great.
2. The belt holds tight when worn outside of yoga pants (or jogging tights), but not so much if you wear it against your skin under your shirt.
3. The pockets hold your phone well tight against you, although I can't fit my keys in any of them (with the fobs).
4. Completely no bounce when running and/or jogging (but again haven't held key fobs in the pockets).
5. I like that it's machine washable (I sweat a lot and it helps to not have that stink going on during class).

On top of all the superlatives other reviewers have used to describe flip belt, I think there are some "best practices" worth mentioning, particularly if you're using it to run outside.

I used the belt for the first time today (at a gym, on the treadmill) and stowed my ID and money as far into the seam that I could on the front of my left hip (actually where the keys are supposed to go - see the little hook in the picture). When I returned home and flipped the belt so the openings were facing outward, my cards and money were hovering a little too close to that opening. One reviewer gave the belt one star (maybe two, can't remember) because he/she lost their ID/cards/money on a long distance run - and I'm guessing my experience was about to be similar. I'd argue both instances involve a bit of user error.

Larger items (i.e., a phone, keys) are going to withstand movement when the belt is flipped against your body. If you're not taking a jumble of keys, you may want to make sure to use the hook attached directly to the belt. Three of the pockets are comparatively shallower than the fourth, and are better suited for bulkier items (phone, keys, heck, even a small wallet). If you're ONLY putting a plastic card (e.g.,an ID or credit card) into the belt, there is a fourth pocket that's deeper than the other three that ends on the belt's seam. Put your cards THERE. If you're not going to put cards/money into any holder that will create friction, movement will cause those slippery plastic cards to move along the spandex material. Even better, make sure the pocket you insert them in rests somewhere on your front (put the logo on your back)- if they fall, they'll at least hit your leg. Or put your phone/keys to block them. Or....I could go on. Read more ›

Great product with little care for larger devices

By KingNigel on March 17, 2015

Size: Large/32"-35" Color: Black Verified Purchase

I bought this belt so that I can go running with my Galaxy Note 4, Which is quite huge. In theory, it does fit fine. The fit is very discouraging, though, because as you slide it in you'll probably press every button on your device, including volume keys. That sucks because you have to adjust the volume after the device is inserted. Now through my experience, once everything is on, you are good to go. I used Runtastic during a run and tracking was fine. The belt stayed tight and at most times I didn't notice my keys & phones were on, let alone the belt. I had a Bluetooth headset connected to my device during the run which stayed paired under the material. As a guy, I felt funny putting it on (like underwear over your shorts), but it's discrete once you adjust it and have a shirt on. Fit was accurate according to sizing on Amazon. As far as sweat,the material handled it well and didn't aggravate my phone at all, though I do have a case on it. Speaking of which, fit may be a bit better without case, But I tried it with a case just to check. Probably wouldn't work with an otterbox or other bulky case. Honestly feel like there should be a bigger design or one slot that is more welcoming to larger devices. Great product overall and still highly recommended.

UPDATE: Without a case, larger devices work quite nice. Changing review from 4 stars to 5.
