RE: *US Dominion, Inc., et al. v. My Pillow, Inc., et al.
Court File No.: 1:21-cv-00445-CJN

Dear Counsel:

This letter responds to the emails between counsel regarding MyPillow's purported obligation to Answer and the timing of a meet and confer to set a discovery schedule. Copies of those emails are attached as Exhibits A and B.

Answer

You have asserted that MyPillow's failure to file an Answer to Dominion's Complaint on September 24 is "not permitted under the rules" and that if we do not file an Answer "within 7 days," you will consider our clients "to be in default."

MyPillow and Mr. Lindell each filed, on September 23 and 24, 2021, respectively, a "Notice in Lieu of Filing Answer," setting forth the reason why no Answer was filed by either defendant on September 24. (Doc Nos. 74 & 75). That reason will endure until there is a resolution of the current appeal processes filed by MyPillow and Mr. Lindell.

(1) Both MyPillow and Mr. Lindell filed Motions for certification under 28 U.S.C. 1292(b) of an interlocutory appeal of the denial of their Motions To Dismiss. (Doc Nos. 58 & 59). Judge Nichols entered an order prescribing dates for the filing of an Opposition to the Motions and for the defendants' Replies to the Opposition. (Minute Order, September 2, 2021). While Judge Nichols has the Motions for Certification, the Opposition, and the Replies under advisement, the Notices correctly recite that it would be premature for MyPillow to file an Answer.

The Notices declare that notwithstanding this prematurity, MyPillow and Mr. Lindell “will file an Answer if” Judge Nichols so orders. Consequently, Dominion cannot seriously claim that MyPillow is “in default” if they fail to file an Answer “within 7 days”. The case law is clear, “[f]or default judgment, defendant must be considered a totally unresponsive party, and its default plainly willful, reflected by its failure to respond to the summons and complaint, the entry of default, or the motion for default judgment.” Int’l Painters & Allied Trades Indus. Pension Fund v. Auxier Drywall, LLC, 531 F. Supp. 2d 56, 57 (D.D.C. 2008) (internal quotations omitted). See also Asia N. Am. Eastbound Rate Agreement v. BJI Indus., Inc., 900 F. Supp. 507, 511 (D.D.C. 1995), supplemented, 923 F. Supp. 4 (D.D.C. 1996) (“default judgment must normally be viewed as available only when the adversary process has been halted because of an essentially unresponsive party”).

(2) Both My Pillow and Mr. Lindell also filed on September 9, 2021, Notices of Appeal under 28 U.S.C. 1291. (Doc Nos. 64 & 66). The Notices of Appeal state that the District Court’s denial of their Motions To Dismiss are “collateral orders” that are immediately appealable under 28 U.S.C. 1291. The Court of Appeals has docketed the appeal and set an appellate schedule.

Ms. Walker’s email of September 30, 2021, cites two cases to support her conclusion, stated in a footnote to Dominion’s Opposition to MyPillow’s Motion for Certification, that an immediate appeal is “frivolous.” The cases cited are inapposite.

The majority opinion in New York Times v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254 (1964), described the First Amendment right that the decision secured as a “privilege for criticism of official conduct,” “the privilege for the citizen-critic of government,” and other related privilege. 376 U.S. at 282 & n. 21 (emphasis added). The opinion recognized this “privilege” as “a fair equivalent of the immunity granted to the officials themselves.” 376 U.S. at 283 (emphasis added). The denial of a motion to dismiss a defamation lawsuit abridging this “privilege” and “immunity” is the legal equivalent of a denial of absolute or qualified immunity, which is immediately appealable under 28 U.S.C. 1291.

The Notices of Appeal filed by MyPillow and Mr. Lindell cited, in addition to the landmark Supreme Court opinion in Cohen v. Beneficial Industrial Loan Corp., 337 U.S. 541, 546 (1949), two cases that recognized immediate appellate jurisdiction over otherwise early interlocutory rulings rejecting immunity defenses. The Supreme Court’s decision in Mitchell v. Forsyth, 472 U.S. 511, 524-530 (1985), and the decision of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit in Meredith v. Federal Mine Safety and Health Review Commission, 177 F.3d 1042, 1048-1052 (D.C. Cir. 1999), both support immediate appellate jurisdiction over a “collateral order” denying the privilege and immunity recognized in New York Times v. Sullivan.

There is, therefore, no substance to the repeated declarations made that an appeal in this case at this juncture is “frivolous.” Dominion’s cited cases do not concern appeals of district-court denials of absolute or qualified immunity and do not address the basis for MyPillow’s 1291 appeal.

Meet and Confer

Finally, Dominion’s suggestion that MyPillow join “a group to discuss discovery coordination and a joint scheduling order” is oblivious of the different procedural stages of our case compared to the other cases. Although Judge Nichols considered the cases together for the purpose of the Motions To Dismiss, only MyPillow and Mr. Lindell are seeking immediate appellate review pursuant to New York Times v. Sullivan. While the MyPillow lawsuit is on appeal certain other cases have not yet even filed a responsive pleading, while other cases have fully Answered.

Only in Dominion v. Giuliani was there a “Joint Meet and Confer Report” which Judge Nichols reviewed. Following this review, Judge Nichols ordered an “updated Joint Meet and Confer Report” after the “parties in all related cases have had the opportunity to discuss a Joint Scheduling Order.” MyPillow has not had an opportunity to present its position to the Court regarding consolidated discovery. No order has been issued in the Dominion v. MyPillow lawsuit requiring a meet and confer or consolidating the schedule for discovery. It is not the appropriate time for a meet and confer that includes MyPillow and we do not believe that Judge Nichols has ordered that in this case. My Pillow will take the opportunity to discuss these matters and present its opposition to consolidation should it still be required once the appeal process is completed.

Again, we suggest that we jointly request a status conference with the Court to provide our positions on these issues and get the court’s direction regarding the disputed matters. Please advise if you wish to proceed with such a request.

Sincerely,

/s/ Andrew D. Parker

Andrew and Doug:

MyPillow and Mr. Lindell failed to answer Dominion's complaint on September 24. This is not permitted under the rules. Please file an answer within 7 days, or we will consider your clients to be in default.

In the meantime, we will include you on separate email correspondence with counsel for Mr. Giuliani and Ms. Powell where, in accordance with Judge Nichol's September 27 order in the Giuliani case (attached), we are trying to convene a group to discuss discovery coordination and a joint scheduling order.

Subject: RE: Dominion v. MyPillow, et al: Defendants' Answer

Laranda,

This is in response to your email below sent yesterday. As indicated in our Notice in lieu of Answer, no Answer was filed in this case because the matter is on appeal to the DC Circuit Court of Appeals (Circuit Case No. 21-7103, Doc. #1914267) which affects the entirety of this case and an Answer is not appropriate at this time. The matter has been docketed at the Court of Appeals and an order setting a schedule has been issued by the Court of Appeals. "The filing of a notice of appeal is an event of jurisdictional significance—it confers jurisdiction on the court of appeals and divests the district court of its control over those aspects of the case involved in the appeal." Price v. Dunn, 139 S. Ct. 1533, 1537, 204 L. Ed. 2d 238, 242, 2019 U.S. LEXIS 3401, *10 (quoting Griggs v. Provident Consumer Discount Co., 459 U. S. 56, 58, 103 S. Ct. 400, 74 L. Ed. 2d 225 (1982)). See also Bombardier Corp. v. Amtrak, 2002 U.S. App. LEXIS 25858, *2, 2002 WL 31818924. There has been no ruling which would revert jurisdiction in the District Court.

Your assertion that MyPillow is, or in seven days will be, in default is specious. MyPillow has and continues to defend against the claims in this case. Rule 55 provides that a default judgment is appropriate when a defendant "has failed to plead or otherwise defend..." Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a). MyPillow has briefed and presented oral argument on a motion to dismiss and has sought an appeal to the D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals and has filed a Notice in lieu of Answer with the District Court. Any suggestion that MyPillow has failed to plead or defend against Dominion's lawsuit is inaccurate and improper. No Answer to the complaint is required at this time. Neither your demand nor directive changes that. We are certainly not waiving our right to Answer, if necessary, at the appropriate time.

Thank you, Andrew Parker

Andrew and Doug,

Thank you for your emails. We disagree with your assertion that the District Court lacks jurisdiction. A notice of appeal from a nonappealable order—in this case, Judge Nichol’s order denying Defendants’ motions to dismiss—does not deprive the district court of jurisdiction. See, e.g., Robertson v. Cartinhour, 691 F. Supp. 2d 65, 75 (D.D.C. 2010) (“[I]t is well-settled that neither a denial of a motion for summary judgment nor a denial of a motion to dismiss are considered ‘final orders’ that are appealable under § 1291.”); McKesson HBOC, Inc. v. Islamic Republic of Iran, 315 F. Supp. 2d 63, 66 (D.D.C. 2004) (“It is settled that a notice of appeal from an unappealable order does not divest the district court of jurisdiction.”). Notwithstanding your clients’ refusal to participate, we will meet and confer with counsel for the Giuliani and Powell defendants and work towards a joint scheduling order, as instructed by Judge Nichols, without your input. If we reach agreement, we will ask the Court to enter the scheduling order in all three cases.

Thanks,
Laranda

Subject: RE: Dominion cases - discovery plan and scheduling

Stephen,

Thank you for your email below sent yesterday afternoon. The chain also includes your email from September 16 on the same subject. I have attached my response to your email of September 16 for ease of reference. MyPillow's position remains the same. In light of the appeal status of this case, proceeding to a discovery schedule at this time is premature. Jurisdiction in this case is currently at the Court of Appeals.

MyPillow has not and does not agree to consolidate Dominion's lawsuit against MyPillow with Dominion's lawsuits against Giuliani, Powell, Byrne, and/or One America News, so it will not be productive to discuss a joint scheduling order during a conference with those parties, particularly since the My Pillow lawsuit is currently on appeal while the other cases are not. We will certainly follow an applicable court order to the contrary and will present argument on these issues, if necessary, at the appropriate time. As you note in your email, the order to meet and confer was issued in the Giuliani litigation, to which MyPillow is not a party.

Without waiving any jurisdictional issue, if you wish to jointly request a status conference with Judge Nichols to discuss these and related issues, please let me know.

Andrew

Subject: Dominion Cases--Discovery Plan and Scheduling

Based on the responses we've received, we suggest convening by zoom at 4:00 p.m. eastern on Thursday, October 7 to discuss the Joint Discovery Plan. We're happy to send a zoom invite to anyone who plans to participate. Just let us know who to send it to. Thanks.
