I am grateful that you came to the White House for discussions regarding the safety of our schools. Your voice is very important in the national conversation about keeping our students safe.
 Our Nation will forever remember the innocent lives taken from us by the horrific act of evil that occurred at Sandy Hook Elementary School. We hold the memory of your beloved [redacted] close in our hearts.
 Your family's courage and strength have touched people across our country. I am honored to hear that you have poured your love into a meaningful example of the healing power of helping others.
 Thank you again for coming to the White House. My Administration is committed to making significant progress in securing our schools so that all children in America can realize their potential in safe and encouraging environments.
 May God bless you and your entire family.
 Sincerely,
 [redacted]
 Sandy Hook, Connecticut
